It's Dad's Day

FATHER'S DAY — Jack Hawkins, 902 South Sneed, receives his Father's Day gift from his family and also gets an admonishment to just relax because it's his day. Keith, 9 years old, and Jack's wife, Ruth Ann, were all smiles for the occasion, but Jack Lyman, 2½, wasn't quite so jovial. The Hawkins' are all wearing bright summer togs ideal for a backyard picnic. (Democrat-Capital photo)

Seven Persons Are Injured in Crash

CAMERON, Mo. (AP)—Seven Pennsylvanians were injured, two fatally, in the flaming crash of their station wagon Saturday five miles south of Cameron on U. S. 69.

Dead are Mrs. Eva Krapf, 64, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., and Richard Michael Pfaff, 12, of Marysville, Pa.

Three of the other victims were injured critically, Richard Clyde Pfaff, 34, father of the dead boy; his daughter, Irene, 16, and Herman Clyde Krapf, 68, husband of the dead woman.

Pfaff's wife, Phyllis Jean, 34, and another son, Kurt, 9, were injured less seriously.

The highway patrol said Pfaff's vehicle slipped off on the shoulder, sideswiped another car in swerving back onto the pavement, then overturned and burst into flames.

Strike Threat Blocked

Railroads And Unions Are Given Choice by Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy blocked Saturday the threat of an early rail strike and made clear he is ready to ask Congress to bar any tieup over the lingering "featherbed" issue.

In a dramatic, 15-minute confrontation at the White House, he gave the railroads and the operating unions this choice:

Settle the dispute by July 10 or face legislation that will bring an enforced settlement by someone else.

Both sides agreed to return at once to the bargaining table to seek their own agreement, and both expressed confidence it will be reached without congressional action.

Presidential intervention in the dispute shoved aside the possibility of a nationwide strike soon after midnight next Monday—a deadline reset from last Wednesday at the request of Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz. Both sides accepted the President's recommendation that they maintain the status quo until July 10 or until they agree.

Roy E. Davidson, president of the independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and a spokesman for the five operating unions, said, "We believe that an agreement can be reached on all questions before July 10."

J. E. Wolfe, spokesman for the carriers, said his side will "proceed to negotiate on the basis that agreement will be reached."

Wolfe said, and labor spokesmen agreed, that all those present at the White House session shared the President's determination "to avoid the national catastrophe" of a nationwide rail strike.

The key to the lingering controversy is whether and how there will be an elimination of about 40,000 firemen's jobs from diesel-powered yard and freight engines. The railroads call these "featherbed" jobs and assert they are costing about $600 million annually in unnecessary wages.

Kennedy, opening his statement, scolded both sides by saying "there actually has been no real bargaining, in any effective sense, in this case—although it has gone on for almost three and a half years."

Then he told them, in effect, that their failure to agree is endangering the whole principle of free collective bargaining. He said he always has supported this principle and hopes to continue to do so "but it has to work."

Police Barricades Charged by Negroes

An Hour After Evers Is Buried

About 75 Persons Arrested; Called For Evers' Killer

JACKSON, Miss (AP)—Crying "we want the killer," hundreds of chanting, bottle-throwing Negroes charged police barricades in the heart of Jackson Saturday an hour after the funeral of Medgar Evers had stirred racial emotions to a fever pitch.

Police, with the help of a Justice Department attorney, brought the wild demonstration under control in about 50 minutes.

Some 75 persons were reported arrested.

The attorney, John Doar, of the civil rights division of the department, walked toward the surging Negroes with his arms upraised and appealed to them to stop throwing bottles.

"This is not the way to do it," he said. "You are doing yourselves more harm than good."

For the first time during the current racial campaign in Jackson, police dogs were used against demonstrators. One Negro woman was bitten. She struggled furiously as police wrestled her away from the scene.

Evers, a top official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was shot in the back as he stepped out of his automobile at his home early Wednesday.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 mourners jammed the Negro Masonic temple from the floor to the topmost balcony Saturday. They lined the walls, filled the aisles and spilled over into an adjacent room.

During the services, they moaned, wailed and wept openly as speakers eulogized Evers as a "crusader" and a "martyr."

President Kennedy, in a letter of sympathy to Evers' widow, wrote, "although comforting thoughts are difficult at a time like this, surely there can be some solace in the realization of the justice of the cause for which your husband gave his life."

On Racial Issue

Positive Action By Some Cities

WASHINGTON (AP)—While racial troubles continued in the spotlight, the Justice Department reported Saturday that in 143 cities "some positive, visible step" in voluntary removal of racial barriers has been taken since May 22.

The cities, all of 10,000 or more population, are in the 11 former Confederate states plus Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Oklahoma.

The department identified none of the cities in which action has been taken.

The department has been checking closely on the progress of desegregation since Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and other Justice Department officials began a series of conferences May 22.

Sessions have been held with representatives of hotels, restaurants, theaters and retail stores to persuade them to act voluntarily and promptly in striking down racial discrimination.

In releasing figures on a background basis—meaning the information was not to be attributed directly to any one individual—one department official said:

"It is extremely encouraging. It shows that the South is not monolithic. Many Southerners who are just as dedicated to the traditions of the South as others recognize that these changes have to be made."

A department spokesman cautioned newsmen against treating the figures with undue optimism. "The tough ones are tough," he explained.

The department has been keeping close tab on 244 cities in Southern and Border states.

These cities are divided in three categories. The first includes 169 cities which the departent feels can be desegregated without difficulty.

The second includes 40 cities where the department feels desegregation can be accomplished, but in which it thinks business groups must act together, rather than individually.

The third category includes 359 cities—"like Jackson", one official said, obviously referring to Jackson, Miss. These cities, a spokesman said, either have an adamant mayor or a strong segregationist organization such as a Citizens Council unit.

Woman Is Slated For Space Trip

Russian Cosmonaut Is Doing Well In Solo Journey

MOSCOW, (AP) — Ladybird Ludmilla is flying up next week to join Lt. Col. Valery F. Bykovsky for the final 24 hours of his Vostok V space mission, Communist sources indicated Saturday night. They hinted the rendezvous is set for Tuesday.

Ludmilla was reported ready to take off from the same launching pad at Baikonur, a Kazakh town 1,200 miles southeast of Moscow, from which Bykovsky, who calls into orbit Friday.

The girl is described as 25, moderately pretty and tougher than her masculine colleagues in her ability to endure the effects of weightlessness. Moscow newspapers were reported to have biographical sketches of her in hand for developments.

The reports concerning the Romeo and Juliet astronautics failed to disclose whether she is married. Bykovsky is. The 28-year-old fighter pilot, the Soviet Union's fifth cosmonaut, is the father of a 3-month-old boy, Valery Jr.

While prospects ebbed for any teaming up effort this weekend, Bykovsky went easily through his solo routine.

He ate three kinds of meat for lunch. He talked to the earth at intervals. He took over control of the ship manually for a while. He smiled for a television projector that showed some objects floating weightlessly in his cabin. But he never uttered a word—publicly, at least—about the girl.

Soviet correspondents were on an alert during much of Saturday. That alert apparently ended with the passage at 3 p.m. of his 24th hour in the air. It could have been based on the way the "heavenly twins" flights developed in 1962.

One day and a few minutes after a Soviet rocket boosted Maj. Andrian Nikolayev into orbit last Aug. 11, another blasted Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich up to join him on a cruise in which they sighted each other, though they did not make physical contact.

Scientists believed that the aim of the current effort is to get two space ships together. They might be linked experimentally as a move toward fabricating a platform for firing a manned vehicle to the moon or Mars.

2 Pastors Give Views On Election

Wednesday, Roman Catholic Cardinals from all over the world will meet at the Vatican in Rome, Italy, to elect a new pope. The election is require because of the recent death of Pope John XXIII.

The Rev. F. C. Laudick, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, says he has never been disappointed in the selection of a pope and he does not expect to be disappointed this time. The last few men have been outstanding, said Father Laudick. "Pope John XXIII was an exceptional person."

The Rev. J. F. Nolan, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, made this statement concerning the forthcoming election: "The church has been very fortunate to have five very successful popes in our times. Catholics and people everywhere are praying that the Holy Spirit will guide those who are meeting in conclave next week to elect a new pope."

The council will go into conclave the evening of June 19. Balloting will begin with two votes Thursday morning and two votes in the afternoon.

It is expected that the signal of election will, this time, be given by electric light. Traditionally the news of election of a new pope has been denoted by white smoke rising from the election building. However, when Pope John was chosen, the smoke issued from the chimney at intervals from shades of white to black, causing much confusion.

World-wide, there are 82 cardinals, from the United States: Joseph Cardinal Ritter, archbishop of St. Louis; Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York; James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles; Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston; and Albert Cardinal Meyer, archbishop of Chicago.

Parks Her Camp Bed

LONDON (AP) — A secretary, Susan Harris, 24, parked her camp bed in front of the House of Commons Saturday, starting a queue of one for a seat in the public galleries at Monday's crucial debate on the government sex scandal.

There are seats for 150 of the public. Miss Harris was equipped with apples, nuts and a flask of tea.

Two Youths Arrested For Fighting Friday

Police were called to Garst's Drive-In, 115 West Broadway, at 11:53 p.m. Friday where a fight was reported in progress. The officers arrested two youths and charged them both with disturbing the peace by fighting. The complaint was signed by Police Sgt. Perry Franklin.

Police identified the two youths as Darrell Joe (Tony) Buso, 19, 415 East Harvey; and Allan L. Kreissler, 18, Route 2, Lincoln.

Both were later released on $25 bonds for appearance next week in police court.

Symington to Speak

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—Sam Overfelt, president of Missouri Young Democrats, announced Saturday the two main speakers at the Young Democrats' convention in Jefferson City next weekend will be Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri and Rep. Neil Staebler of Michigan.

Symington will give the keynote speech Friday and Staebler will be banquet speaker Saturday night.

Not Dead After All

A report at 9:49 p.m. Friday that a dead man was believed lying in the southeast corner of Housel Park sent officers and two police cars scurrying to the scene.

Police officers Lester Williams, Donald Shipps and Sgt. William Miller found the suspected corpse all right, but reported the man was "not dead, just dead drunk."

James Raymond Forrester, 334 South Engineer, was booked on a charge of being intoxicated, police said.

Swimming Party Is Fatal to Young Girl

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—A 12-year-old Cape Girardeau girl drowned Friday while on a swimming party at the Trail of Tears State Park near Cape Girardeau.

Police said Linda Wiseman was swimming with her sister, Mrs. Sandra Dodd, 21, and two other girls. Police said the Wiseman girl was riding on a log and lost her balance.

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A two-car accident killed two persons Saturday evening in suburban Bridgeton.

Another man, Salvateri Marchesi, 22, of St. Louis, was critically injured.

No Roadblocks Seen

Legislature Into Final Two Weeks

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— As Missouri's unpredictable Legislature goes into its final frantic two weeks, the leaders see no serious roadblocks to settlement of the remaining controversies.

Work on bills must end automatically at midnight Sunday, June 30. But if all goes well the leaders are aiming at adjournment by Saturday night, June 29.

Two years ago last minute hassles over congressional reapportionment and a blood test bill for suspected drunken drivers kept things in an uproar right up to the last minute. This time the chemical test bill is already dead, killed by the House Judiciary Committee, and there is no reapportionment problem.

The session's biggest fight was over when a bill to increase the two-cent sales tax to three cents was passed weeks ago. Since then most of the squabbling has been over division of the revenue.

Much of that fight has centered around the issue of liberalizing the state aid formula under the school foundation program. The Senate Education Committee came up with a compromise solution last week that would cut the estimated cost of the House bill from almost $35 million to around $10 million for the first two years.

That gives the House-Senate conference committee a new problem to consider when it starts to work Monday on the apropriation bills. But it is believed enough money is available to meet this extra cost.

Of course, it's never safe to forecast what a jury or a bunch of tired legislators will do. In the final rush some special problem might pop up to cause new delay and confusion.

For example, pressures always build up on specific appropriation items and sometimes a legislator with a state institution in his district can put together enough votes to upset the conference committee recommendations.

This time, however, Sen. J. F. Patterson, D-Caruthersville, the Senate appropriations chairman, says he sees no problem that cannot be settled by a little give and take.

Saturday Was Last Day to Buy Stickers

Saturday was the last day to purchase city motor vehicle license stickers and the long line into Collector Frank Hugelman's office was evidence that many people prefer to wait to the final day.

Persons who don't have a new sticker for their motor vehicle are now subject to receiving a ticket from police.

A 15-day extension was granted at the first of June. Normal deadline is June 1.

Zoning Board Refuses To Okay Applications

Sedalia's Zoning and Planning Commission Friday night declined to approve two applications to re-zone property as result of citizens protests. Final authority to disapprove the applications rests with City Council, but commission chairman Virgil Herrick says the council's practice has been to agree with the commission's findings.

The property involved is:

Lots eight through 14, inclusive, in Broadway Heights addition. Application was filed by Myrtle Fountaine and Lee and Corene Hudson, owners.

Blocks five and 10 and the east halves of blocks six and nine in Fairview Place addition. This application was filed by Ladye Renshaw and Bettina Davis.

The Weather

Considerable cloudiness with several periods of light rain Sunday and Sunday night; no important temperature changes; highs Sunday in the 70s; low Sunday night in the 50s or lower 60s.

West of Stover

Two Sedalians Die In Truck Accident

Two Sedalians were fatally injured at 8:30 a.m. Saturday when their eastbound pickup truck struck a concrete bridge abutment over Hawk Creek on rain-slick Highway 52 about four miles west of Stover.

Killed were John O. Hammond, 50, 1000 East Seventh, believed to be the driver of the truck, and Bobby Joe Lane, 29, 420 East Boonville, passenger in the truck, according to Troop F Highway Patrol headquarters in Jefferson City.

The patrol said the accident occured two-tenths of a mile east of the Benton-Morgan county line.

The 1958 Chevrolet pickup truck was believed to be traveling east, came off a hill, rounded a curve and struck the bridge abutment, the patrol reported. The truck was owned by the Independent Plumbing Company of Sedalia.

Lane was killed instantly, the patrol said. His body was taken to the Scrivner-Stevinson Funeral Home in Stover and later transferred to the Gillespie Funeral Home here.

Hammond was brought to Bothwell Hospital by ambulance, but was dead on arrival. His body was also taken to the Gillespie Funeral Home.

Sgt. Donald J. Slevins of Versailles investigated the accident for the Highway Patrol.

Lane was born April 8, 1934, in Sedalia, son of Elmer and Nellie McBain Lane. He was married to Beverly Burnett, July 25, 1958, in Sedalia.

He was employed by Independent Plumbing Co. He was active in sports, participating in high school football, Ban Johnson and semi-pro baseball, bowling and soft ball. Bobby Joe was a second lieutenant in the National Guard and was eligible for promotion July 10 to first lieutenant. He served in the U. S. Army from 1952 to 1953. Bobby Joe played

Sedalians Hurt In Fatal Mishap

A Sedalia family, returning three boy scouts from Camp Pa He Tsi, was involved in an accident in which one person was killed about 3 p.m. Saturday, 13½ miles south of Versailles on Highway 5.

Involved from Sedalia were the Aubrey W. Owen family, 1207 South Ohio. Owen, 54, said he received lacerations, bruises to the right knee and right arm; his wife, Helen, 43, received a fractured rib and lacerations of both legs and arms; their son, Bobbie, 12, received a minor laceration of the head and injuries to his teeth. Owen said he was thrown out of the car at impact.

Killed in the accident was Miss Jeanne Elizabeth Zmek, 21, Kansas City, the highway patrol reported. She was a passenger in a car driven by Gary Lee Vandorn, 24, Columbis, who suffered chest and back fractures and was taken to the University of Missouri Medical Center at Columbia in critical condition.

Owen said he and his family were returning to Sedalia with three boy scouts, Terry Terrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Terrell, Missile Manor; Larry Scantlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Scantlin, 4200 South Grand; and Roger (Tommie) Trueman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Trueman, 2402 Dennis Road. They sustained very minor injuries which apparently did not necessitate treatment.

The highway patrol indicated that the accident occurred when the Vandorn car came up behind two cars which the driver apparently thought were stopped. Vandorn slammed on the brakes, the patrol said, and his car skidded in front of the 1954 Buick driven by Owen.

Owen said he was going north. He indicated that the highway was slick from rain. The Vandorn car

WORKMEN are rapidly transforming the rolling countryside on West 16th Street Road into Sedalia's newest recreation facility, the Surf Club. The photograph at top shows the partially completed club house and the swimming pool which still has much more work to be done before completion. Picture at top left shows a view of the swimming pool with the purification plant in the rear. Bottom left, looking toward 16th Street, shows a combination of wood and brick architecture used in the club house. Opening of the club is scheduled for July 4.

Surf Club Project Nearing Completion

An inspection of the Surf Club today showed that it is rapidly nearing completion. James Gladbach, general manager of the new private swim and recreation club, announced that plans are to have the grand opening July 4. Kenneth Cordry, who is chief lifeguard and in charge of the pool operation, announced that Russ Robinson, John Waller, and Pam McGrath will be guards and others will be selected later.

Mr. and Mrs. John Talbot who are building the club and leasing it to the Surf Club, stated that in excavation for the main pool they encountered an unusually thick layer of rock which required almost three weeks of blasting with dynamite and caused a delay of at least a month.

The bathhouse lounge will be air conditioned and is being furnished with wrought iron patio furniture. Large laminated arch wood beams were made especially for the club house by a firm in Magnolia, Ark.

The ceiling is a heavy clear pine imported from Canada. Both ends of the building will be all glass with the rear opening on to a patio where non-swimmers may observe the activities of those in the pool area. Swimmers will have an outdoor patio adjacent to the snack area and a covered poolside patio.

A snack bar will be installed in the club house lounge. Picnic areas are being established for members' use. Talbot stated that because of the rush to finish the pool it will be a while before he starts the tennis courts. Plumbing is one of the most complicated aspects of construction of a pool but it is now virtually completed.

All three pools are complete except for lining with a coat of pure white ground marble which will be plastered to the sides and bottom and will give a smooth everlasting white finish. The pool will have underwater lighting by a unique system of water cooled lights. Background music will play continuously.

Gladbach said that because of the delay in starting operation of the club, a refund of one-third of the annual dues has been returned to those who have made advance payments. Annual dues for lifetime members for the balance of this year will be $25. The initiation lifetime membership fee of $135 may be paid over a three month period with no interest or may be paid over a 12 month period with bank financing arranged by the club. Single members are admitted for one-half the family membership fee.

A special plan is available for missile and Air Force personnel here on a temporary basis. The club will admit their family for the balance of 1963 for $40 with no lifetime membership required to be purchased.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will print this letter from a "young fossil" to prove to adults that all teenagers are not nutty. I'm not the only one in our school who agrees with you that boys and girls should not be holding hands or walking with their arms around each other in school corridors or on the street.

Fellows who have genuine respect for their girls keep their hands to themselves in public. Girls who allow themselves to be pawed look plain cheap.

The teenager who wrote, "When two people love each other it is perfectly O. K. to let the whole world know" must have rocks in her head. What do 15 and 16-year-old kids know about love? As a teenager I can tell you that what they think is love is only physical attraction.

If kids want to be treated as adults they ought to learn the meaning of the words. — ALSO A TEEN

Dear Also: It's always a treat to get a letter from a teenager which reflects solid thinking. I received many letters from high school kids who expressed this point of view, but yours was the greatest.

Dear Ann Landers: We were childless for 12 years. Then as if by a miracle I gave birth to a darling baby girl.

Lisa is 18 months old and my husband refuses to allow me to engage a woman or a sitter. If we receive an invitation which does not include the baby we cannot accept. If we go to the movies we take Lisa along. We've never been away from her for even one evening.

I am worried because Lisa is terribly afraid of strangers and will have nothing to do with anyone outside the immediate family. My husband claims we had so many years of gadding about that we should be content to stay at home.

Frankly, I'm dying to get out for an evening. I would settle for once a month. — M AND D

Dear M and D: Young children must learn to get along with people outside the family. The fact Lisa at 18 months is afraid of strangers proves she already is having emotional problems.

By all means start to go out one evening every other week and don't let her tyranize you into staying home. Just say goodbye and leave.

Dear Ann: I'm having real trouble with my 20-year-old daughter. She is attractive, bright and holds a high paying job.

Stephanie has been going with a divorced man who says he is 32. He looks 42. She met him at work and has fallen hard. The man's wife was a tramp and he has custody of their four children. The youngest is only two years old. A housekeeper takes care of the children.

Stephanie has gone with this man for only 2½ months and he has asked her to marry him. I'm afraid he is looking for a mother for his children rather than a wife. Every weekend when the housekeeper is off she goes to his home and works like a horse.

Stephanie says I must allow her to lead her own life. I'm a widow and she insists I am hanging on to her because she is all I have. This is not true — I want her to marry some day, but I want it to be a good marriage, and I don't think this is right for her.—SAD MOM.

Dear Mom: A 20-year-old girl who takes on a 32-year-old man with four children after only 2½ months of courtship could be making a big mistake.

Ask her to give the romance another six months. I'm betting if you keep mum and not put her in the position where she must defend her choice, she'll break it off.

It's hard for a mother to remain silent in such circumstances but silence is your best ally.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Paradox of Noise, Sterility In Building Gemini Vehicles

EDITOR'S NOTE—The next big step planned in America's space program is Project Gemini, a second stage in the intended flight to the moon. Here is an up to date closeup of the two-man Gemini capsule and the job it is designed to do.

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — In a paradox of industrial roar and germ-free silence, aerospace technicians who built astronaut Gordon Cooper's Mercury space craft are constructing 13 sophisticated Gemini capsules.

Space experts at McDonnell Aircraft here in St. Louis hope Project Gemini will complete the second giant step of America's manned celestial stride.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans its first Gemini test shot — an unmanned ground-to-sea ballistic flight—this year. The sleek spacecraft's first orbital flight probably will go next year, spokesmen say.

The giant McDonnell plant which built all 20 Project Mercury oneman capsules, paradoxically resembles both a clanging metal shop and a quiet hospital. Getting into the security-shrouded space factory is like getting out of prison—

Perhaps most striking is the plant's "white room"—a purifying area just off the thundering assembly line. There, in controlled silence and climate, white-clothed technicians clean and sterilize every part of the Gemini capsules and assemble the spacecraft.

The white room resembles a hospital maternity ward, but these doctors tend with a physician's loving care the birth of Gemini capsules. The area sparkles. Every inch of the Gemini's 14 miles of wiring and intricate system is cleaned and wrapped in sterilized plastic.

"We have to eliminate all impurities," says general foreman Bill Watkins, "and make the spacecraft parts so clean that foreign elements can be seen only under a microscope.

"With the new fuel system the Gemini will use, elimination of minute impurities is absolutely necessary. If a piece of heavy dust or grease should clog a line it could cause an explosion."

The Gemini will use a new type propulsion system employing hypergolic propellants. These propellants—a fuel and an oxidizer—are stored separately in pressurized tanks and brought together in thrust chambers. No catalyst or spark is required; they ignite on contact with each other.

The thrust chambers are positioned to permit attitude control as well as maneuvering in orbit.

Another new feature in Gemini is the method by which electrical power is generated. While Mercury spacecraft depended on heavy batteries, Gemini obtains its electrical power from a chemical fuel cell—hydroyen and oxygen gas separated by an ion exchange membrane—which saves considerable weight over batteries.

Hydrogen ions migrate through the membrane and combine with the oxygen to form electricity, water and waste heat. The waste heat is expelled into space, but the water is so pure astronauts can drink it.

The Gemini's hypergolic fuel replaces hydrogen peroxide used by Mercury to control pitch, roll and yaw. Officials say the hydrogen peroxide had a tendency to corrode, while the new fuel will not.

The Gemini differs in many respects from Mercury.

It is designed to remain in orbit up to two weeks, and to rendezvous with another space vehicle—much like a plane refueling in the air. It also is designed to make a controlled glide after re-entry into the earth's atmosphere through use of a kite-like para-wing.

And, it will land on the ground on skids—similar to the X-15 rocket—and at a speed comparable to that of a light plane.

The Gemini, which will orbit at 17,500 m.p.h. after a boost into space by a Titan II rocket, has about 50 per cent more cabin space than the Mercury. It is about twice as large, standing 12 feet high with a base of 7½ feet.

Each of its two astronauts will look forward through windows over its nose, much like pilots of conventional aircraft.

The capsule rests atop two other parts designed to keep it in space two weeks—a retrograde ring nestled just beneath the spacecraft containing retrorockets for re-entry; and an equipment section attached below it housing electronic and fuel systems not required during the re-entry.

The basic communication equipment and guidance system components are located in the re-entry vehicle, which is a self-contained unit.

The over-all package is 20½ feet long.

When the spacecraft finishes its mission and is ready to return to earth, a guillotine device will sever and crimp delicate control wires and fuel lines from each of the two components.

In addition to having a radar and a computer system, the Gemini boasts a feature which scientists hope will avoid costly delays should some equipment fail to work just before liftoff.

It will use an equipment concept in which many vital systems are intsalled outside the pressure area where the astronauts ride. Technicians thereby could remove a faulty piece of equipment from the outside, replacing it with a new one which could permit the shot to go as scheduled.

Project Gemini, of course, is expensive. McDonnell's government contracts total $456,650,000 for research and development. On the face of it, this means each capsule costs about $35 million—almost as much as a nuclear submarine.

But the finished Gemini capsules do not approach this figure. A tremendous amount of money goes into research work that first must be done before the spacecraft roll off the assembly line.

Savings Assn. Birthday

First State Observing Its Fiftieth Anniversary

The First State Savings, Third and Osage, is observing its 50th anniversary, having been chartered June 24, 1913. It moved to its present location in 1958.

A. L. Pringle has served the First State as director and president since 1933. He is a retired foreman at the Missouri Pacific Shops. He came to Sedalia in Jan. 1904, and went to work at the new Missouri Pacific Shops, and was there when the first engine was put into the shops for shop attention in 1905. He made his first State Savings Association the Sedalia Savings and Loan Association in 1921.

J. E. Mitchell is executive vice president and director, first joining the association as assistant secretary in 1957, and in 1959 was elected to the board of directors. The same year he was appointed Missouri Savings and Loan State Supervisor and was granted a leave of absence, but continued to serve as a director. He returned to active employment at the Association in 1960, when he became managing officer, which position he holds today.

Mitchell has great faith in the future of the Association, the years 1961-62 having reached a new peak level in saving at the First State Savings.

Other members of the board of directors, are Henry C. Salveter, vice president-counsel; K.U. Love, treasurer-director and Clinton F. Black, director.

Employed at First State Savings are: Don Broaddus, loan officer; Charles C. Barnett, comptroller; Donald R. Braden, loan service officer; Mrs. Beatrice Beard, insurance manager; Mrs. Wilma Dirck, administrative secretary; Miss Thelma Howie, teller; Mrs. Lola Nichols, teller; Mrs. Emma Lee Miller, bookkeeper and Mrs. Stober, clerical assistant.

The First State Savings will conduct a contest at which they will give $120 in first, second and third prizes, which will be savings accounts, to the one who estimates closest the assets of the Association at teh close of business on June 30th.

The assets of the Association since its beginning on June 30, 1913, at which time they were $250,000, have grown until the assets on May 31, 1963 were $11,454,498.73.

Erlander Described As Durable

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — He is 6 feet 3, and you may see him standing in the rain outside Government House, waiting for a taxi to take him home.

He is Tage Erlander, Sweden's prime minister and the most durable premier you'll find among the freely elected governments of Europe.

"No one can beat Erlander," says one astute Swede. "He'll probably be prime minister when he is 80."

That gives him years to go. He will be 62 June 13.

Erlander has led the government since 1946—longer than any other prime minister in Swedish history. Most Swedes consider that he will be a shoo-in for a new four-year term in 1964 elections.

Erlander checked the flagging fortunes of his Social Democratic —Socialist—party in the '50s. He pushed through sweeping educational reforms which have resulted in doubling the number of students in high schools and universities.

His administration has instituted major improvements in working hours and vacation periods, family welfare, compulsory health insurance and pensions.

Erlander's energetic reforms paid off handsomely in the 1960 national election. His party drew the largest vote in its history—over two million out of 4½ million votes and an absolute majority in Parliament.

What sort of man is this Socialist intellectual who has consistently confounded his more flamboyant political opponents? He does not look like a formidable politician. He walks with a stooping gait. He has a shock of graying hair, wears horn-rimmed glasses and dresses in conservative suits. He is calm, even-tempered and suave. Although an intellectual and a theoretician, he puts his thoughts across in simple terms.

Education Board Hires Personnel For Knob Noster

Knob Noster board of education met June 7. Contracts were approved for: James E. Graves, Knob Noster elementary principal; Miss Jo Ann Clark, Whiteman, grade one; Miss Joyce Ashe, Whiteman, grade three; Miss Betty Templeton, junior high home economics and science; Lloyd Cowherd, physics and mathematics. This completes the 1963 - 64 faculty.

The above have accepted their positions, with the exception of Mr. Graves, who is awaiting release from an assistant principalship at Parkville. Mr. Graves has had 11 years elementary teaching experience and is nearing completion of his master's degree in elementary administration.

New equipment approved by the board, to be delivered this week includes a Massey-Ferguson 50 tractor with power steering, a rotary mower and a grader blade. Air conditioning is being installed in the reception room of the superintendent's office.

Stage curtains have been installed in the senior high school. Stage lighting and a public address system are in place but not completely wired and adjusted.

Considerable work is planned for the summer. A service counter is to be installed in the senior high school principal's office; new floors in two rooms and partitions moved in two rooms in junior high; painting in all buildings except senior high school; the athletic field has been surveyed and work can soon be started there; sidewalks are planned for Whiteman School.

Non-certificated personnel will be hired at the July meeting.

Some Men Fail To Register

Service recruiters in the mid-Missouri area have noted in the past few months that some 18-year-olds do not have selective service registration cards when they report to the recruiting stations to make applications for enlistment.

Mrs. Verna E. Williams, clerk of the Sedalia selective service board, pointed out that all males 18 years of age and above must register, under federal law, or face a possible federal penalty of a fine up to $10,000, or five years in prison, or both. Under federal law the selective service classification card, or draft card, must be carried on the person.

Mrs. Williams pointed out that youths must register at their proper selective board within five days after their 18th birthday, or if they entered the active service before their 18th birthday, they must register in ten days after they are released from the service.

The board clerk also pointed out that after an individual registers at any draft board, he comes under that board's jurisdiction for life, and must report any change of address, or any other information that might change his classification, to the board where he is registered.

One of the biggest problems at the local board is keeping up to date on the changing status of individuals. For instance, the board is now in the process of sending out certificates to fathers under 26, which must be filled out and returned to the draft board by the date indicated on the card.

Some of these certificates are overdue, Mrs. Williams pointed out, and if they are not in the selective office by the next board meeting, some fathers under 26 years of age may find themselves in Class 1-A, instead of 3-A, as they would have been if the certificates had been returned.

The Pettis County Selective Service Office is located on the second floor of the post office in Sedalia, and is open all weekdays except Saturdays and holidays.

Thinks Planned Demonstrations Would be Wrong

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said Saturday he thought it was wrong for Negroes to plan massive demonstrations in Washington in support of civil rights legislation.

"This civil rights thing is being promoted by a bunch of demagogues," Truman snapped when asked for comment on the Negroes' plans.

"Their rights are set out in laws that have been on the books since 1868," he added, "and if they go at it in a common sense, honorable way, they won't have any trouble getting their rights.

"And that's all I have to say about it."

Church, State Can Become Too Separate

MARSHALL, Mo. (AP) — Gov. John M. Dalton told a meeting of Presbyterians Saturday the church and state can become too separate.

The governor spoke at the eighth annual conference of the Missouri Council of United Presbyterian Men at Missouri Valley College.

"We do not want the church in government," he said, "but we must operate government under Christian precepts. Not to do so could eventuate only in the loss of those values we hold dearest in the American system."

Gov. Dalton urged churchmen to participate in political affairs in order to elect the most competent officials possible and to help build for a greater and better future.

"We need clergymen, scientists, engineers, businessmen, scholars and military leaders, but unless we have orderly government with strong officials of integrity and vision in leadership, the rest of our society will not have full opportunity to function. We need in public life the participation of all our Christian citizens," the governor said.

No injuries were received in a hit-and-run accident about a mile east of Dresden at 12:55 p.m. Friday, involving a Sedalia teen-ager.

Involved were a 1956 Ford driven east on Highway 50 by Leroy L. Weller, 32, LaMonte, and a 1957 Pontiac, driven by a 16-year-old Sedalia girl.

According to Trooper Richard Joos, the Pontiac was passing the Ford and apparently cut back into its own lane too soon. The right rear of the Pontiac collided with the left front of the Ford. Both cars left the scene under their own power.

State law prohibits the use of any person's name if they are of juvenile age.

A car and a truck were involved in an accident about 4:16 p.m. Friday at Second and Lamine.

Involved were a 1961 Chevrolet truck, driven east on Second by Oscar Earl Niles, 59, Hallsville, Mo., and a 1952 Mercury, driven south on Lamine by Jesse F. Paxton, 17, Route 3.

The front of the truck and the front of the Mercury were damaged.

The left front of the Dodge and the right front of the Mercury were damaged.

A pickup truck and a parked station wagon were damaged in a collision at 7:40 a.m. Saturday in the 1700 block of West Third.

Police reported the driver of the eastbound pickup was James R. Vincent, 26, C17 Saturn, Missile Manor. The 1958 Ford station wagon was owned by Wesley Bunce, 34, 1717 West Third.

The right side of the truck and the left side of the car were reported damaged.

A westbound auto struck a steel electric pole in the 1400 block of West Broadway at 2:35 a.m. Saturday.

Driver of the 1955 Plymouth was Robert Cross, Jr., 21, Route 3, police reported. The right front end of the car was damaged and damage was incurred to the pole and the lawn in front of 1420 West Broadway, police said in the accident report.

Dale Dean Neth, 21, 316 East Seventh, was listed as a passenger in the Cross auto and police indicated he received minor injuries. He apparently did not require emergency treatment, however.

Two cars were involved in an accident about 3:57 p. m. Saturday at Fourth and Harrison.

Involved were a 1963 Dodge, driven west on Fourth by Kenneth R. Walker, 33, 1404 South Park, and a 1951 Chevrolet, driven north on Harrison by Reynaldo Buso, 27, 315 East Harvey.

The left side panel and hub cap of the Dodge was damaged. The Chevrolet sustained no damage.

The intersection of Ninth and Osage was the scene of a two-car accident about 3:14 p. m. Saturday.

Involved were a 1953 Chevrolet, driven north on Osage by Marlynn Strader, 22, St. Louis, who complained of injuries, but was reportedly not treated, according to police, and a 1962 Chevrolet, driven south on Osage and turning left onto Ninth by Leo R. Spears, 55, 400 East 14th.

The front of the 1953 Chevrolet and the front of the 1962 Chevrolet were damaged.

Spears was given a police summons for careless and imprduent driving and is to appear in police court, June 18.

No injuries resulted in a one-car accident about 7:30 Saturday about one and one-half miles south of Sedalia at the covered bridge.

Involved was a 1953 Chevrolet, driven north by James Oliver Jehle, 23, 244 South Vermont.

According to Trooper Robert Bruce who investigated, Jehle drove off the runways in the bridge floor, lost control of his car, slid off the road and struck a tree.

Jehle was given a highway patrol summons for careless and imprudent driving, failure to exercise the highest degree of care in a motor vehicle and being intoxicated while driving.

The car was towed to Sedalia by the Bacon wrecker.

Hoover Improved But Condition Still Serious

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover remained seriously ill, but some improvement was reported Saturday in his condition.

Doctors attending the 88-year-old former chief executive have said he is suffering from "anemia, secondary to bleeding from the gastrointestinal tract."

A medical bulletin Saturday said that "although his condition remains serious, there has been improvement in Mr. Herbert Hoover's condition compared to Friday.

"Today, there is no evidence of continued bleeding."

It was the only bulletin scheduled to be issued Saturday.

Hoover's family announced Friday that he became seriously ill a week ago in his Waldorf Towers suite. The only visitors allowed were his sons, Allan and Herbert Jr. His wife died in 1944.

Three doctors attending the nation's 31st president noted Friday that "although his condition is serious, it is, for his age, reasonably satisfactory." There were no immediate plans to remove him to a hospital.

You get a whole lot more than that '59 Chevrolet (great as it was!) could offer. Some big improvements, some small, some for savings, some for performance, some for comfort.
For example, you get a car that's easier to care for. Flush-and-dry ventilating system uses rain and wash water to help remove corrosion-causing elements from rocker panels. A more fully aluminized exhaust system, self-adjusting brakes and new Delcotron generator (battery-saver!) cut costs, too.
You get styling and interior comfort you'd look for in far more expensive '63 cars. Plus such optional equipment* as a Super Sport package and adjustable Comfortilt steering wheel to make an Impala Sport Coupe or Convertible as personalized as you like.
You get a wider choice of horsepower, too, from the economical 140-hp Turbo-Thrift 6 up to a V8 rated at 425 hp.*

Sportsmanship Stressed

Little League Is in 12th Year of Play in Sedalia

Now in its 12th year, the Sedalia Little League provides wholesome summertime lessons in sportsmanship to over 500 Sedalia area boys, aged 9 - 12.

The local Little League has grown in its years from four teams, playing at Housel Park in 1952, to forty teams, ten each in the majors, "A," "B" and "C" league minors.

Games are now played at three separate Little League baseball diamonds. The diamond at Housel Park is still used for "B" and "C" games; the stadium in Liberty Park, completed in 1953, is home for the majors; and a newly completed Little League stadium in Centennial Park houses the "A" league minors.

The ground for the new stadium was given to the Little League by the Sedalia Park Board, with the stipulation that the Little League furnish material and labor to construct a stadium on the site.

All the labor in connection with the construction project was donated. According to Archie Hughes, head of the local Little League, two line crews from Missouri Public Service donated their time, on Saturdays and after working hours, to set the light poles, light fixtures, bulbs, wire, meter and service line at the new stadium. MPSC donated the use of company equipment in the project. Installation of the cyclone fence around the field was also done by employees of MPSC.

The tractor used to level the diamond at Centennial Park was donated by the Stevenson Tractor Co., with Bob Salmon, Carl Walker, and Francis Ream driving the tractor.

Bleachers at Centennial Park were set up by Bob Stratton and Gene Waterfield. The concession stand at the new stadium was moved there from Housel Park by Herb Jones, J. C. Angel, and three of his employees.

The total cost of the new stadium (which is still without dugouts) was around $2,500, according to Hughes. Much of the material sued in building the new stadium was obtained at discounts from local firms.

The annual budget in a normal Little League year runs between $6,500 and $7,500, according to Hughes. This cost is partially met by a $300 donation from each of the team sponsors: Adco, American Legion Post 16, Elks, Jaycees, Lions, Moose, Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimist and Sedalia Ice and Cold Storage. The balance of the financial backing comes from "passing the hat" at Little League games and from such efforts as the Little League Ladies Auxiliary, which this year raised about $1,100 in a membership drive.

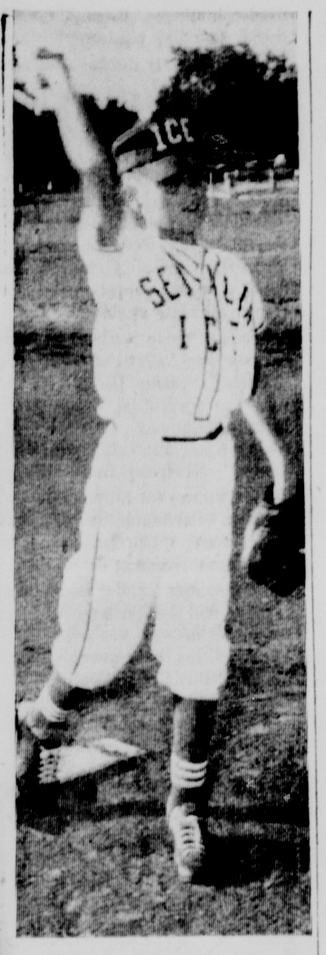
There are many people other than managers who contribute much time to the Little League program. Among these are the officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary: Mrs. Bill Raumaker, chairman; Mrs. Allen Pledge, secretary; Mrs. James Lewis, treasurer. There are also Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lang, who contribute their time in running the concession stands at all three Little League stadiums, and many others who do the routine work necessary in maintenance of equipment and the grounds, and in keeping the daily program of the Sedalia Little Leagues moving.

The local inspiration for the Little League was gleaned in 1951 when a local minister, a Rev. Lindsey, returned from a trip to Illinois. He had seen Little League baseball there, and was convinced that Sedalia youth would benefit from a similar program. It was through his leadership, and the leadership of many other civic-minded local men and women, that the first year's program with four teams was established.

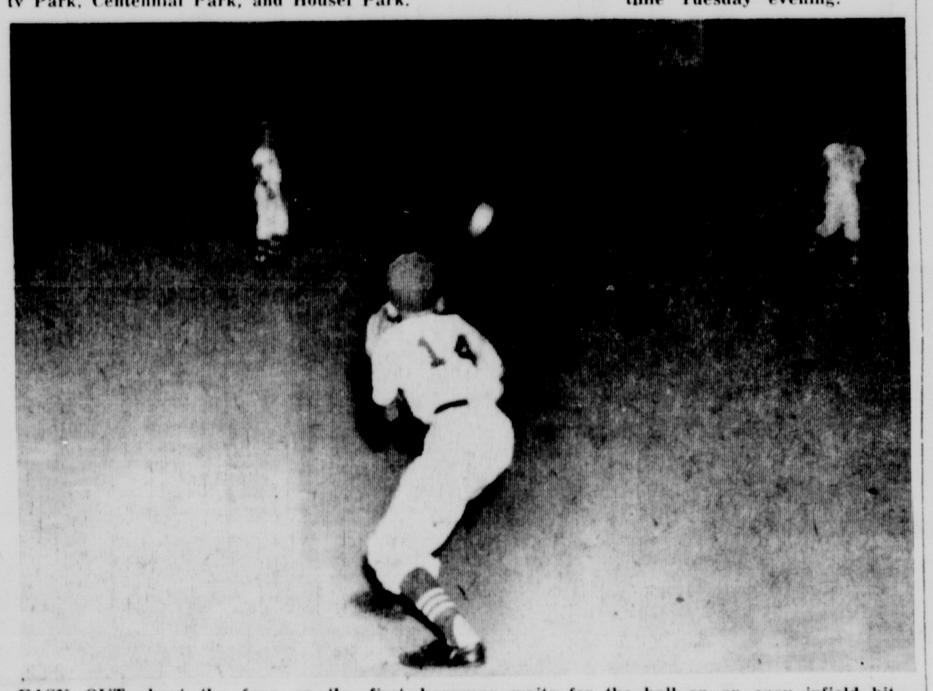
Nationally, Little Leagues are in their 24th year. The start of the now international program was a three team league in 1939. Last year there were more than 6,000 leagues, including leagues in Europe, Canada, and Central America.

The purposes of Little League are many, but Little League officials point out that no trophies or other recognition is given for "batting champion," "best pitching record," or other awards based on skills. Awards of this type are contrary to the policy of the national Little League Foundation. The object is training in good sportsmanship. In the words of the Little League Pledge, ". . .I will play fair and strive to win, but win or lose, I will always do my best."

ENTHUSIASM is displayed by fans at all Little League games. Games begin at 6 p. m. at the Little League stadiums in Liberty Park, Centennial Park, and Housel Park.



LARRY BROWNFIELD, a pitcher for the Sedalia Ice Little League team fires a warm-up toss before game time Tuesday evening.



EASY OUT shout the fans as the first baseman waits for the ball on an easy infield hit.

Ice Leads League; Whip Adco

Ice put themselves solidly in the driver's seat in the National League, and Rotary kept out of the American League cellar while beating Elks out of a tie with league leading Kiwanis in action Friday night at Little League stadium in Liberty Park.

The first game saw Ice shut out Adco 5-0. Peter Green was the winning pitcher for Ice, with Guy Scalzo taking the mound loss for Adco.

Rotary slipped past Elks 6-5 in extra innings in the second game. The winning pitcher for Rotary was Jim Wanserski, with Monty Finley taking the pitching loss.

Terry Sinn had 13 strike outs as his Rotary teammates put over eight runs, to defeat Elks 8-5 in "A" league action at Centennial Park. Lyndon Walk was the losing pitcher for Elks.

In the second game at Centennial Park, Ice kept their perfect season record in defeating Adco 7-4. The winning hurler for Ice was Charles Williams. Park Denny took the mound loss for Adco.

In "B" team play at Housel Park, Kiwanis defeated Ice 6-5. Greg Voss was the winner for Kiwanis, with Earl Buckner chalking up the loss.

Kiwanis put across 16 runs, and Ice only four in "C" league play at Housel. George Bain was the winning pitcher for Kiwanis, with Greg Boehne taking the loss.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

IT may sound like a broken record to you readers, since it comes up every summer, but it concerns financial support, not to mention fan support of the various summer sports underway in all of Sedalia's public parks. Especially when it costs so little to give the various leagues a little help in "kicking in" when the hat is passed.

The most recent example of helping out was given to me the other day by a member of the Independent Softball League. The softball league plays at the Centennial Park and has been having some mighty fine attendance around the diamond.

It seems a count of the automobiles in and around the park in which occupants were indulging in the recreation of watching some of the games totalled an astounding 67. During the evening the hat was passed for free-will contributions and the total collection amounted to about $3.60, just a little more than two percent. If each car had contributed the small sum of a quarter the league would have been helped out tremendously by $41.75, and it could have been used to good advantage.

So far I haven't had any definite reports from Babe Ruth, Little League or the Connie Mack League, but in past years financial support wasn't too hot. However, when Little League was first organized the bleacherites were fairly liberal with their donations, but in recent years the collection bucket has been a little on the short side.

Be it Little League, Babe Ruth, Connie Mack or the Independent Softball Leagues, if their games are worth sitting in your car or in the bleachers for a couple of hours to watch, certainly they are worth at least a two-bit (25-cent) donation.

These leagues have expenses and they are not small. For example, the lights are not furnished free, but have to be paid for and they burn from six to more than eight dollars an hour. They have baseballs to buy, and they don't come cheap anymore. They have bats, and other equipment to purchase and it keeps the league officials busy scraping around to keep the "kitty" out of the red to meet these bills.

So the next time you sit in your car or stand around at any of these games, do not hesitate to come up with something when the hat, bucket or cap is passed. Give them a lift — they need it and need it bad.

—o—

CERTAINLY a lift is being given to the summer program with monies they made from their recently successful Memorial Day auto races. The civic group is spending the money to build a Babe Ruth park at Centennial Park, a badly needed project. Everything is moving along smoothly, report James D. Penn, president of the Jaycees and Kenny Melton, project chairman.

One thing is sure, they'll keep the profits from those races in circulation and for a good cause. Made through sports, it's being spent on a project to promote sports.

Expenditures are approved for $3,000 which is expected to be enough to build a steel back stop, new bases for the ball diamond, furnish bleachers and the lighting system. The Sedalia Park Board, it is understood, will grade off the diamond at a select location in the new park.

President Penn also reports their project on the Soap Box Derby is moving along nicely with 25 entries to date and the hope of several more by derby time, Sunday, July 7. Penn said this is the third annual race, and they hope to at least come up to the wonderful program which was introduced for the first time in Sedalia three years ago.

Certainly the Jaycees' confidence is paying off when they proposed an expenditure of $3,000 for the ball park, and depending on that amount through the success of the Memorial Day racing event, which met with every expectation.

The Memorial Day races alone have created state-wide interest and it has become a big date for Sedalia and brings thousands of people here. That's another aim of the Jaycees, to advertise and make Sedalia known throughout Missouri and surrounding states. They've done a grand job so far.

25 Local Boys In Derby Race

A total of 25 local boys will race in the Sedalia Soap Box Derby to be run Sunday, July 7, at the Missouri State Fair grounds, according to John Laschkewitsch and John Gardner, co-chairman of the local derby.

The derby, sponsored locally by the Sedalia Jaycees in cooperation with the Mike O'Connor Chevrolet Co., is in its third year.

Activities slated for derby weekend in Sedalia include a queen contest the evening of Friday, July 5, and a parade through the downtown area Saturday afternoon, followed by the running of the derby Sunday.

The boy winning the local derby will be awarded a $500 savings bond and will go, all expenses paid, to the 26th running of the All-American Soap Box Derby on August 3, in Akron, Ohio.

Nationally, the idea of an organized coaster race originated with Myron E. Scott, now an assistant public relations director of Chevrolet, when he was a Dayton, Ohio, newspaper photographer. After a local Soap Box Derby race in Dayton in 1933, Chevrolet took over the event on a national basis. The first All-American in Dayton the following year drew 34 entries.

In 1935, the race was moved to Akron, where it has been held since. The 1935 race was run on Tallmadge Hill. Derby Downs was completed in time for the 1936 All-American. The most unusual race track in the world, the course has been improved and expanded each year since.

An All-American Derby has been run every year since 1934 with the exception of the war years 1942-45.

Although originated for American boys, the derby has steadily gained international stature and is recognized abroad as a symbol of this country's youthful enterprise, competitive spirit, sportsmanship and opportunity. Canada and several overseas guest countries send champions to Akron each year.

This year the All-American Soap Box Derby reaches new heights in interest and participation throughout the world. Champions from 141 communities in 45 states the District of Columbia, Canada and five overseas guest countries will compete in the 26th running of the All-American at Akron on August 3.

At Akron, the city champions live at Derbytown, a well equipped boys' summer camp. The camp, operated by the YMCA, is located 15 miles south of Akron.

The top nine winners at Akron are awarded a total of $30,000 in college scholarships, along with trophies, wrist watches, and a Soap Box racing diploma. In addition there will be individual prizes for the cars with the best brakes, best design, fastest heat, best constructed car and best upholstered car.

The All-American champion is decided in four rounds of races, with all entrants racing, three cars at a time, in the first round. The first, second and third place winners are decided in the 128th and final heat of the derby.

The entries in the Sedalia Soap Box Derby, to be run Sunday, July 7, are as follows:

Rick G. Chrisman, 1416 South Ohio; Stanley Cox, 1112 East 16th; John Dawson, Jr. and Lloyd E. Dawson, 1004 North Osage; Danny Gant, Otterville; Daniel Gentges, 910 South Missouri; Tag Gross, C-45 Saturn; Mike Hawkins, 1609 West Ninth; Mark Hedges, 2506 Plaza; Mike Heimsoth, Mora; John Hicks and Robert Hicks, 119 South Stewart; Michael Jarvis, and William Jarvis, C-51 Saturn; Jim K. Fast Team Action In Area Sports

Pepsi defeated Broadway 7-5, and Redwing Pest Control slipped past S and M Athletic Goods 2-1 on an error in the bottom of the last inning in Connie Mack League play Friday night at Liberty Park baseball diamond.

In the first game, Broadway Realty chalked up four runs in the second, but Pepsi came back with a seven-run, in three innings attack. A one run rally by Broadway in the last inning was not enough, and Pepsi took the win, 7-5.

The winning pitcher for Pepsi was Hotchkiss, with Matthews taking the loss for Broadway Realty.

The second game, with the winner taking the league lead, was scoreless for the first four innings. Then in the bottom of the fifth, McCown got a single for Redwing, stole second, and was caught between second and third on a fielder's choice. He then scored on a throwing error by the shortstop.

S and M tied the game with a run in the top of the sixth. The run was scored on a walk, a single, and a fielder's choice. Then in the bottom of the 1st inning with the bases loaded, a throwing error by the catcher allowed Redwing's winning run to score from third.

The next game in Connie Mack play will be Wednesday, when the VFW meets S and M at 6:30 p.m. at Liberty Park diamond, with Redwing facing Pepsi in the second game.

Pre-Season Chances To See Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, June 15 — Kansas City, the newest professional football haven in the country, will get two pre-season opportunities to see its Chiefs.

Texan general manager Jack Steadman announced a five-game pre - season schedule Saturday. Included were Aug. 9 and Aug. 23 dates in Kaycee, an Aug. 31 game in Wichita, Kan. and Aug. 3 and Aug. 17 visits to the west coast of San Diego and Seattle.

The Aug. 9 game will be the official Kansas City unveiling of the Chiefs. The opposing Buffalo Bills are the most talked-about team in the American Football League. The Bills finished even faster than the AFL champion Chiefs, or Texans as they were called then. Buffalo, with Jack Kemp calling signals and the 240-pound Cookie Gilchrist running over people, lost only one of its final nine games. Only a miserable start in which the Bills lost five straight kept the Western New Yorkers from challenging for the Eastern Division title.

Just three weeks before the then Texans dethroned Houston in the epic six-quarter sudden death game in Houston, Buffalo beat the Dallas team 23-14 at Buffalo. Strange as it sounds when you consider that Houston has won three straight Eastern titles, Buffalo is considered by many the team to beat for the division championship.

Denver, the Chief's foe Aug. 17, was runner-up to Dallas in the West last year. Jack Faulkner's team started exceptionally fast in 1962 and this year the Broncos should be considerably better. A full year experience in the Faulkner system plus a topnotch rookie crop should make the difference.

Both Kaycee dates will be played in the Chief's new Municipal Stadium home.

Wichita gets a preview of the Chief's home opener when Houston plays the Kaycee team, Aug. 31. The same two teams will meet again, Oct. 6, in Kansas City's first home AFL encounter. The Oilers, with much the same lineup that has dominted the AFL's eastern division, lost 20-17 in last year's championship game to the team they will meet in Wichita.

The San Diego Chargers will play host to the Chief's in the first pre-season game of 1963. That will be a nighttime affair as will the two Kansas City and Wichita games. The Chargers own about as much talent as anyone in football. A seige of injuries spoiled things in 1962, but in 1961 and 1960 the West Coasters were champions of the West.

Rejuvenated Oakland, with a new coach, new players and a new outlook, is the Seattle adversary in a day game at University of Washington Stadium.

Hank Stram, who will open his training camp at William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., July 14, in preparation for the pre-season schedule, has one of pro football's top exhibition records. The Texans won 12 of 16 pre-season games they played, including six in a row in 1960.

THE PRE-SEASON SCHEDULE

Aug. 3 (Sat.), Chiefs vs. San Diego Chargers at San Diego.

Aug. 9 (Friday), Chiefs vs. Buffalo Bills at Kansas City.

Aug. 17 (Saturday), Chiefs vs Oakland Raiders at Seattle.

Aug. 23 (Friday), Chiefs vs Denver Broncos at Kansas City.

Aug. 31 (Saturday), Chiefs vs. Houston Oilers at Wichita.

Jones Is Named Chairman For Missouri GOP

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lem T. Jones, 66, a retired Kansas City candy manufacturer, was elected chairman of the Republican state committee Saturday by a single vote.

He defeated Gene Taylor, 35, Sarcoxie automobile dealer, 30-29, in a tense roll call that saw the lead change several times.

The state committee has 60 members but the retiring state chairman, Sen. James P. Kelly of Trenton, did not vote, so only 30 votes were needed to elect.

As soon as the result was obvious, Taylor moved to make the election unanimous in the usual show of harmony. Rep. Durward G. Hall of Springfield, who had backed Taylor, also sent a telegram congratulating the new chairman.

Kelly resigned the chairmanship so he could become president of Kemper Military Academy at Boonville.

Jones urged GOP members to build a strong organization from the precinct up.

Giants Edge Houston 1-0 In No-Hitter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants pitched the third no-hitter of the major league season Saturday as the Giants edged Houston 1-0 after a bitter struggle with Dick Drott. It was the first no-hitter for the Giants in 34 years.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers threw a no-hitter at the Giants May 11 when Marichal was on the losing end 8-0, and Don Nottebart of the Houston Colts set down the Phillies with no hits in a 4-1 victory May 17.

The Giants were held to one hit, a single by Willie Mays with two out in the first, until they finally broke through for a run in the eighth. Jim Davenport led off with a double to left. After Matty Alou was called out on strikes and Marichal flied out, Chuck Hiller came through with a double to the right field corner, scoring Davenport with the big run.

The last previous no-hitter by a Giant was thrown by Carl Hubbell May 8, 1929 against Pittsburgh.

Marichal, a 25-year-old right-hander from the Dominican Republic, had pitched two one-hitters previously.

Marichal and Drott dueled on virtually even terms through seven innings.

The San Francisco hurler issued two walks, the first to Al Spangler in the fifth after retiring 14 straight batters, and then got Bob Lillis to ground into a force play. Bob Aspromonte walked with one out in the seventh but the next two Houston batters flied out.

Mays singled to short in the first and died there as Willie McCovey fanned to end the inning.

Marichal faced only 29 batters. He finished with a flourish, striking out pinch hitter Pete Runnels and Brock Davis to end the game as his teammates mobbed him and the crowd roared.

Dodgers Defeat Chicago Cubs By Score of 4-1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Drysdale pitched a seven-hitter and beat Chicago for the third time this season as the Los Angeles Dodgers got to Larry Jackson in the early going Saturday and defeated the Cubs 4-1.

The Dodgers picked up their eighth victory in 11 games and the Cubs suffered their seventh loss in nine.

Drysdale, now 8-7, has allowed only three earned runs in 34 innings against the Cubs this season. His over-all earned-run-average is 2.77.

The big right-hander fanned six Cubs and ran his season strikeout total to 110, high in the majors. He didn't walk a man and now has gone 31 innings without giving up a base on balls.

Downing Takes Second Straight As Yankees Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Downing, 21-year-old rookie southpaw, won his second straight for the New York Yankees Saturay, 9-2, over Detroit with the aid of 13 Yank hits and sloppy play by the Tigers' Jake Wood.

The victory elevated the Yanks back into the American League lead by eight percentage points.

Downing, making his second start since his recall from the Richmond, Va., farm, struck out nine. Hector Lopez drove in four runs and Tom Tresh hit a two-run homer, his 10th of the year and his sixth against the Tigers.

Some zany base running by Wood, Detroit second baseman, helped him out of a jam in the third. With one run in, two on base and nobody out, Wood was caught off second, escaped the rundown only to wind up as cotenant of second with teammate Billy Bruton, who was out. A few minutes later Wood was caught trying to take third on a ball that rolled away from catcher Elston Howard.

Cleveland Shuts Out Senators 4-0 In One Hitter

CLEVELAND (AP)—Pedro Ramos retired the first 20 Washington batters until Jim King doubled with two out in the seventh Saturday and Ted Abernathy completed the one-hitter for a 4-0 Cleveland victory.

Ramos, who injured his arm three weeks ago and had not pitched since May 25, left the game after the seventh. It was announced from the dugout that he was tired. He struck out nine and didn't walk anybody, pitching a perfect game for 6 2-3 innings. King's double was slammed down the right field line with two strikes on him.

Joe Adcock slashed a two-run single that broke up the duel between Ramos and Bennie Daniels in the four-run seventh inning for the Indians.

Kansas City Knocks Sox Out of Lead

CHICAGO (AP) — A seventh-inning run scored on relief pitcher Dale Willis' first major league hit proved the clincher in a 4-3 Kansas City Athletics victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The setback dropped the White Sox out of first place, eight percentage points behind the New York Yankees who defeated Detroit 9-2.

Chicago's Ray Herbert, winless since May 14 after five shutout victories, failed in his seventh quest for his sixth decision although he went the full distance. It was Herbert's fourth defeat.

In the A's seventh, Wayne Causey singled, reached second when his hit was bobbled and scored on Willis' single to center. That gave the A's a 4-2 lead.

The Sox got their third run in the eighth when right fielder Gino Cimoli lost Floyd Robinson's drive in the sun for a triple and Robinson scored on a double steal.

LA Pounds Twins With 14-Hitter To Take 9-6 Win

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Catcher Hank Foiles drove in three runs with a home run and single and Los Angeles got effective relief pitching from Art Fowler and Julio Navarro Saturday in pounding Minnesota 9-6 with a 14-hitattack.

Foiles, hitting only .125 in his brief tenure with the Angels prior to Saturday, highlighted a four-run Los Angeles third inning with his first home run of the year, a two-run blow. He also singled home a run in the fifth.

Los Angeles grabbed a 5-0 lead with four unearned runs in the third after Rich Rollins' throwing error. The Twins never caught up.

Fowler was touched for two runs in 4 1-3 innings but kept Minnesota from starting any big rallies. He posted his first win of the season. Navarro relieved him in the eighth and choked off a potential rally.

Relief Pitching Key to Braves' Win Over Phils

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves pushed across a pair of runs on one hit and walks in the fifth inning and defeated the Philadelphia Phils 5-3 Saturday behind the brilliant relief pitching of fire-balling Tony Cloninger.

Cloninger, a young right-hander, allowed three hits and struck out eight in 4 2-3 innings in earning his first victory after three defeats.

The Braves collected nine hits and 11 walks off four Philadelphia pitchers but had to struggle 3 hours, 9 minutes before posting their third straight triumph and strengthening their hold on sixth place. Milwaukee left 13 runners stranded.

The Braves put together a walk, a single by Hank Aaron and a sacrifice fly by Eddie Mathews for a run in the first and then added two more tallies in the second on homers by pitcher Denny Lemaster, his first, and Lee Maye, his third.

Homers End Tie As Mets Defeat Cincinnati, 4-1

CINCINNATI (AP)—Ed Kranepool and Charlie Neal homered in the eighth inning Saturday to break a tie and lead the New York Mets to a 4-1 victory over Cincinnati.

Young Tracy Stallard, 2-3, went all the way, scattering nine hits as he picked up his second straight victory over the Reds. He had a tense time in the eighth when Cincinnati loaded the bases, but Gordie Coleman lined into a double play.

Kranepool's homer—the second of his career—came with one out. Neal hit his third season homer over the left center field fence an out later.

Joey Jay, who lost to Stallard Monday, picked up the defeat, his 10th in 13 decisions.

Rivers Will Rise Due To Rainfall

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Rains up to five inches over east central Kansas and west central Missouri Friday night and early Saturday will bring sharp rises on rivers and streams in the area, the Weather Bureau said Saturday.

There'll be general flooding on smaller tributaries and minor overflows locally on the larger rivers.

Some minor flooding was expected along the Kansas River in the Manhattan, Kan., area. The river was expected to crest 3 feet over floodstage at Manhattan by midnight Saturday.

Mill Creek was expected to crest 2 to 3 feet over bankfull at Paxico Saturday afternoon.

A 1 to 2-foot overflow was expected on the Maris des Cygne River in the Quenemo area by Sunday evening.

The Wakarusa River will crest about 1 foot above floodstage south of Lawrence Sunday forenoon.

If predicted rains of 1 to 2 inches materalize in the Osage Basin Saturday and early Sunday, flash flooding can be expected along smaller tributaries of the Osage and Gasconade rivers.

Rains of 2 to 3 ½ inches on the headwaters of the Big Blue River just south of Kansas City were expected to bring a slight overflow to the river as far downstream as U.S. Highway 50. A crest of 2 feet above bankfull was expected on the Blue at Bannister Road in south Kansas City Saturday evening.

The Weather Bureau said forecasts of substantial additional rains Saturday evening and night may require an upward revision of the river forecasts.

Candy Spots Loses by a Head In Chicagoan

CHICAGO (AP) B. Major, a 35-1 shot across the board, scored a head victory over Candy Spots in a dazzling duel Saturday to take the $113,333 Chicagoan at a mile and a furlong.

The Summer Tan colt, owned by Elmendorf Farms, smashed the track record at Washington Park with a 1:47 1-5 clocking against the old mark of 1:51 set by Formal Gent earlier this month.

B. Major, packing 117 pounds, nine less than top-weighted Candy Spots, was given a whipping ride by jockey Ray Broussard in the final drive along the rail.

The winner paid a whopping $81.20, $15.40 and $4.60 to backers in a crowd of 25,933.

Rex Ellsworth's Candy Spots, suffering the third loss of his career, returned $2.80 and $2.20 while Main Chance Farm's Citation colt, Get Around, paid $2.40 to show.

Decision On Fate of EEC Next Monday

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—A two-day meeting starts Monday that could tell whether the major nations of Western Europe will move ahead now toward forming a single country like the United States, or mark time until President Charles de Gaulle leaves the scene.

The delegates are high policy makers, foreign ministers, and agriculture ministers of the six lands in the European Economic Community. These are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—better known as the Common Market.

Among those due are Foreign Ministers Maurice Couve de Murville, who is De Gaulle's trusted mouthpiece, and Gerhard Schroeder, widely expected to be the next-but-one leader of the West German government.

Conspicuously absent — any spokesman for Britain.

For years after the movement toward unity began, no British government could make up its mind to join. In July 1961, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan finally announced he would start talks.

After 18 months De Gaulle stopped them. Britain, he said, still had too many ties to the United States and the Commonwealth to be a full member of the European Community.

That was in January. Since then De Gaulle has made his veto stick.

The other five members struck back by virtually paralyzing the movement toward unity. At stake were issues of farm prices and markets, highly important to French peasants and to the basic economy of a United States of Europe.

Europeans who want to move faster seem doomed to disappointment. They now have to think about 1965, when De Gaulle may retire.

Monday's meeting may also act on a problem that sounds like a minor one, but which can tell a lot about the kind of union the West Europeans want to form. The issue is the customs duty in West Germany on American frozen chickens.

To protect European farmers against foreign competition, the Common Market has devised a system of variable levies for some farm imports. In less than a year, it pushed the duty on American broilers from 5 cents to 13.25 cents a pound. The United States brought heavy pressure to get the duty down, but less than three weeks ago the Common Market ministers raised it again.

Water Supply Preservation Kiwanis Topic

Mismanagement and waste in preservation of the nation's water supply was illustrated in a colored moving picture shown at the Sedalia Kiwanis club meeting in Bothwell Thursday noon by Russell Evans, field representative of the Dean-Hanes Equipment Co. Also illustrated was the means of proper care of farm lands to prevent erosion by building ponds and terracing and the organization of citizen projects for mutual aid to conserve the water supply.

Evans was introduced by Dan Wolf, program chairman.

Dr. J. C. Alexander, president, called attention to the active participation in club work of Harold Vick, deceased. Following invocation by the Rev. Roger W. Fjeld, members stood in silent prayer as a tribute to Mr. Vick.

Dr. Thomas G. Norris introduced Robert Winge and announced that he had been selected to receive the Kiwanis scholarship loan. Robert is the son of Virgil Winge, a Kiwanian.

Announcement was made that two other sons of Kiwanians had been honored by selection to attend Boys State: Bob Gouge, son of Robert Gouge; and Mike Robinson, son of Dan Robinson.

Singing was led by William Ward with Miss Lillian Fox, accompanist. Birthday greetings were extended to Dick Van Dyne, W. D. Weathers, William Ward, Monte McQuitty, Glenn A. Walker, Clarence Evans and George Ray.

Guests were: Kiwanian Howard Hill, Moberly; Robert Alpert, Peru, Ill., with Jack Shoemaker; and Edward Gagot, Lafayette, La., with his brother-in-law, Dick Dean.

Sodbusting Takes On a New Meaning

EVERYBODY WORKS—After the sod is cut, all hands turn out to make a speedy job of loading the truck. On arrival at the site of the sodding operation, the bundles of sod are in just as good condition as they were when they were at the cutting site. With the bundles tightly rolled, the sod will live for hours, and even days, before it ruins. Shown above are left to right, Kenneth Rowlette, father of the firm's owner, Joe Sowhard, Rolland Rowlette, owner of the firm. Tom Ailshie, Dewey Keyes and on the truck, Kenneth E. Rowlette.

Preparing New Lawns Modern Way

By RALPH JONES

Some of us baby our lawns as if our lives depended on whether or not those blades of grass completely cover our yards. We fertilize, sow new seeds by the ten-pound bag, water the area day and night, then carefully measure the height of the blades to see if our efforts have been successful.

All of this work helps, but there is another school of people who skip all of this coddling and call the Rowlette Sod Co. and order a new yard.

In a few hours the yard will arrive, on trucks, and workmen will roll out the new yard like a green carpet. They they will fill in the few remaining bare spots with tufts of blue grass, roll the yard smooth and leave—all in an hour or so. All you have to worry about is taking care of the new lawn from now on.

If you forget to water the lawn, or allow certain weeds such as "chickweeds" to work their way into the blue grass, Roiland F. Rowlette, owner of the Rowlette Sod Co., will probably be around to remind you to look after the lawn.

"Being around" is probably the main reason Rowlette is operating a successful sodding business in Sedalia. A few ye[illegible] ago, Rowlette told me the other day, he was out of a job. He began looking around for a suitable business to prevent such future unemployment, and decided to form the sodding firm.

The field was wide open, as the saying goes, but Rowlette had no equipment, no contracts, and no place to obtain his sod. It was rough going the first year or so, he said, but more and more people became interested in beautiful lawns that came on trucks, and business picked up.

Now, the firm ranges in operation from the Table Rock Lake area to near Kansas City.

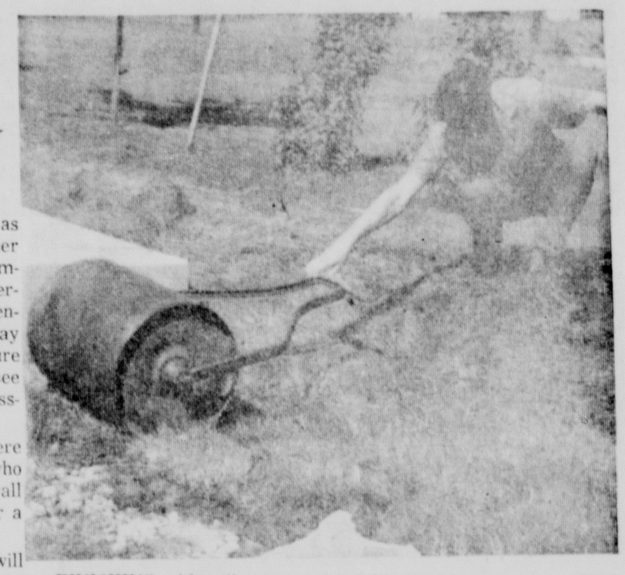
Instead of having to dig, or cut, the sod by hand, the firm owns a machine that does the work of several men. Farmers in the area have been canvassed, and many have agreed to grow the sod on their farms. This not only provides the sodding firm with plenty of raw material to work with, but it gives the farmer a welcome income when cash crops are not being harvested.

Rowlette himself got busy, and discussed sodding with contractors and obtained contracts for sodding in new developments. Many of Sedalia's finest homes have been sodded by the Rowlette firm, and the home owners are pleased with the results.

I asked Rowlette how come he is the only man doing sodding work by contract in Sedalia, and he told me that this is because he is the only man in the sodding business, in Sedalia, who is always around to look after the new lawns he works on.

"Several other firms have tried to do sodding business in Sedalia since I began operations, but the people of Sedalia always award me the better contracts. I am always here to look after the lawn, even after our guarantee runs out," he explained.

Who knows, maybe a new lawn is better than the old one. It's a lot easier to obtain.



FINISHING—After the new sod is laid, the bare spots are filled in, the newly-sodded area is watered down then rolled with this 500-pound roller. This seats the roots in their new home to begin growing again. Kenneth Rowlette is handling the roller.

IMPORTANT—A new growth of ground cover for de-sodded ground is one of the most important phases of the sodding operation. When the sod is removed, the bottom of the root system, and a two-inch of the original sod between each strip of sod removed makes it possible to have an entirely new cover in three growing seasons. Above, left to right, Kenneth Rowlette and Rolland F. Rowlette inspect a strip to make sure there is sufficient growth remaining to re-sod the area.

WORK AHEAD—Rolland F. Rowlette, owner of the sodding firm, looks over a new yard before he begins the preliminary work on the area. The hard clay will be disked, packed and rolled before the new sod is laid. In a few weeks, the yard will look like it has been finished for years.

COVER—The sod is rolled onto the prepared surface, just like rolling out a carpet, and when the installation is complete, there is little difference between the new lawn and a lawn that has been growing for years. Shown unrolling the sod bundles are Dewey Keyes, Tom Ailshie and Kenneth E. Rowlette.

FILL-IN—If the lawn fails to measure up to the desired grade, new dirt is hauled in to fill in the low spots. Above, a truck load of new dirt is dumped to fill in a part of the area being sodded at a motel on West Broadway.

SODBUSTERS—Unlike the "sodbusters" of the early days who used a mule and a plow, these men use a modern mechnical sod cutter that vibrates its way between the two blue grass root systems, about two inches below the surface. Then the sod is rolled into neat bundles to be carted away and placed on someone's lawn. Operating the machine is Kenneth E. Rowlette, son of Rolland F. Rowlette, owner of the Rowlette Sod Co., while the sod is rolled up by Dewey Keyes. Looking on is Tom Ailshie.

A setting of arch candelabra and palms, flanked on either side by a tiered arrangement of baskets of white gladioli, stock and white chrysanthemums with spiral candelabra, was the background for the wedding at three o'clock in the afternoon June 9, at First Baptist Church, of Miss Shirley Kirkpatrick to Mr. Ray Smith. The Rev. J. R. Wallace read the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kirkpatrick, 1800 East 12th and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith, Salem.

Mrs. Bill Grace, Grandview, played, at the organ, "Clair de Lune" Debussy; "Ave Maria," Schubert; "Andante Cantabile" Tschaikowsky; "Ave Verum" Mozart; "Dedication", Franz; "Ave Maria", Bach - Gounod; "Cantilina," Rhienberger; "Wedding March," Mendelssohn; "Bridal Chorus," Wagner; "Panis Angelicus" Franck; "Choral Song," Wesley.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. Her wedding gown was fashioned of imported French lace and silk organdy. The slender lace sheath was styled with a bateau neck and below elbow sleeves. A great overskirt of organdy curved at the sides and lengthened to a chapel train. A rosette trimmed fabric bow held her short pouf veil of silk illusion. She carried a Colonial bouquet of stephanotis, centered with two Cymbidium orchids with matching shower of love knots and touches of ivy.

Mrs. Jerry Iuchs, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Her gown was of veiled chiffon over satin in deep samoron pink. The slender bodice was designed with a scooop neck and very short sleeves capping the shoulders. Unpressed pleats formed the controlled silhouette of the short, front wrap bell skirt. Master Tommy Iuchs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Iuchs carried the wedding bands to the altar on a white satin heart-shaped pillow.

The bride's mother selected a mauve pink lace dress with matching accessories. A light blue lace dress, accessorized with white was chosen for the wedding by the mother of the bridegroom. Each had a Cymbidium orchid to wear with her costume.

Following the ceremony, a reception for 200 guests was held in the Ambassador Room of Hotel Bothwell. On each of the two serving tables was a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and gladioli. The four tiered wedding cake was placed on a table covered with a white silk cloth. Six lighted white candles were on the table.

Mrs. Norman Griswold, Independence, served punch. Mrs. Rosalie Pressley and Miss Earlene Kirkpatrick, the latter of Kansas City, served cake.

Mrs. Mable Chambers was in charge of the guest book.

The couple will take a wedding trip to Canada in August. The bride has selected for travel a goldworm original summer knit suit of pale pink with black patent accessories. Her corsage will be of two white Cymbidium orchids.

DECORATOR'S HINTS

SCALE—Always use furniture and groupings which are in proportion to the architecture combining pieces which are in proportion to each other. For example a high poster bed with canopy or baldachin is rarely in scale to the room with 8-foot ceiling so typical in modern home construction. Nor, are the low, lightly scaled Danish sofas and chairs appropriate or attractive in the Antebellum house with its high ceilings and ornate trim.

The low-armed sofa requires low, broad end table with a tall lamp; the smaller scaled pull up chair requires a smaller table with lower lamp. A few large, important and functional accessories create a more beautiful effect than small, busy bric-a-brac. The "doo-dad" look is to be avoided as poison to the smart room. If you are fortunate enough to own many miniature objects, arrange them in a massive group using the collection as a focal point or major wall decoration.

NEXT WEEK—BALANCE

CYNTHIA'S TOO YOUNG—Cynthia Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Smith, 104 Royal Boulevard, sits and looks longingly at Girl Scouts learning how to build a fire. Mrs. Dean Binderup is telling the girls: "First, you take tender, then kindling and finally, fuel, to make a good blaze." But, Cynthia is too young When she's older, she can attend a complete campout like the one girls of Troop 406, Heber Hunt School, attended recently at Camp Sakajawea, southwest of town.

Morley Says He Enjoys His Failures

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Morley, one of the more distinguished British actors, has a theory that American actors put too much stress on success—and not enough on failure.

The movies' "Oscar Wilde," with tongue slightly in cheek, says: "Failure is a very much underrated pleasure in America. People, especially actors, don't like it very much. They're wrong.

"Success breeds all sorts of unpleasantness, including envy. Failure not only gives pleasure to your friends and fellow actors, it ought to give pleasure to you."

Morley claims to have a special fondness for his failures.

"I have always been most attached to those terrible failures, especially the ones I brought on myself. I'm a director too, you know.

"Among the failures I was most fond of, for instance, was 'A Time to Laugh.' It was a terrific failure, and 'Fanny' was another, an absolutely tremendous, smashing failure in England. I engineered it myself."

Morley currently is in Hollywood making "Take Her, She's Mine." It's his first Hollywood movie in 26 years, since he scored as the mad King Louis opposite Norma Shearer's "Marie Antoinette."

Urban Plan Work Half Complete

OVERPASS—This photo, taken from the south end of the overpass at Main and Limit, shows how far Urban Plan construction has progressed on this portion of the Limit Ave. project. Almost all of the concrete work on the actual overpass has been completed on this structure, and on the MoPac overpass visible in the background. The Howard Bridge Co. is the prime contractor.

(Democrat-Capital photo)

INTERSECTION—This is the area of the intersection of the Highway 65 improvement north of Sedalia. Here, the relocated portion of the highway will join with old Highway 65 at the present time, and cross Highway 50 if the proposed relocation of Highway 50 to the north of Sedalia is brought about. The remainder of the dirt work is almost completed and the roadbed is being prepared for paving. This view is facing north. Highway 65 is on the right.

Work on the Urban Plan project on Limit from just south of Broadway and Limit to the north City Limits, and on re-located Highway 65 from this point on to about one mile north of Sedalia, is more than 50 per cent completed, according to a spokesman from the Howard Construction Co., which is the prime contractor for both projects.

Excellent construction weather from the time the contract was let last fall to now was the main contributing factor in the progress of the projects. Last fall, when the contract was let, Olen Howard said he did not expect to get much done until this spring, but the weather remained dry and comparatively warm, making it possible for the work to continue.

The contract calls for the work to be completed in 270 working days, and at the end of May 130 of these days had been used. Actually, during these working days, the spokesman said, well over half of the work was completed and the company is well ahead of its own schedule.

The concrete work on the overpasses over Main and over the MoPac tracks has progressed to the point that the flooring has been laid, and most of the major dirt moving work has been completed. A considerable amount of right-of-way work, trimming etc., in addition to the paving, remains to be completed.

The firm originally planned to do the paving work in August, but with the project progressing so smoothly the paving date may be stepped up into July.

The major portion of the new roadway will be concrete pavement, however, the intersection of Broadway and Limit, from the north side of the intersection south to the end of the improvement, will be hot mix.

As there will be little work done on traveled roadway, there will be no dust problem during Fair week, from this project, the Howard spokesman said.

In past years dust has been a major problem during Fair week. One year the Highway Department was in the process of resurfacing Highway 50 west of Sedalia, in the Dresden area, and left the crushed stone surface open to traffic. In another year, traffic began using Thompson Blvd., an unpaved street, creating a dust problem in western Sedalia.

The intersection of Broadway and Limit should not be a problem during the week, construction wise, as the company indicated it would have the intersection finished before Fair Week, or, if it cannot be finished by Fair Week, the work will be delayed until later, leaving the intersection free to handle fair traffic.

The Broadway and Limit intersection is a key point in Fair traffic, handling most of the traffic that passes through Sedalia.

Historic Turning Point

Whatever tests between state and federal authorities on the civil rights issue may still lie ahead, they seem unlikely to be made in the personalized terms employed by Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace at Tuscaloosa and Mississippi's Gov. Ross Barnett last year in Oxford and Jackson.

When Wallace called off a plan to bar the door to a Negro student at the University of Alabama's Huntsville branch, it probably signaled a historic turning point.

Wallace's confrontation with United States officials at Tuscaloosa was difficult and emotion-charged. The whole nation must be grateful that it was managed without stirring violence.

True to his word, the governor is maintaining strict order in the critical areas. Admirable restraint and responsibility shown by university students and Alabama citizens contribute importantly to the atmosphere of calm.

Wallace candidly acknowledges he stood in the doorway at Tuscaloosa partly to redeem a 1962 campaign pledge. But he also says he hoped thereby to arouse the country to a new appreciation of certain constitutional issues between the states and the federal government. The governor finds the core of the dispute in the 10th amendment to the U.S. Constitution. It says power not expressly delegated to the federal government under the Constitution, or not prohibited to the states by it, are reserved to the states, or the people.

Authority over education is not one of the power given to the federal establishment. Wallace says the U.S. insistence on entry of Negro students into Alabama's schools amounts to use of federal authority in the education field. He argues that, in consequence, this presents federal usurpation of state powers.

The argument of the federal authorities in both the courts and the executive branch are that in directing the entry of the Negroes into these schools they are not in any way affecting the operation of Alabama's educational system as such. They say the state is free to control teachers, curriculum, and school administration.

The federal contention goes further to say that what U.S. officials seek is simply to assure to the Negroes involved the general rights of citizenship given to all Americans.

It is argued that these are federal rights which know no state boundaries and go with the person wherever he walks, whether in his home, in the voting booth, in a public place or a public institution such as a state-supported school. Government lawyers offer the 14th amendment to the Constitution as the legal support for this argument.

Governor Wallace wants this controversy adjudicated in the manner prescribed by the Constitution—which means in the courts. It is a dispute which has been there before. But perhaps the country will benefit hugely if, as the governor wishes, these issues are threshed out again and strong, clear, thoughtful words are spoken from the bench for all the nation to hear.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH: Piper Cum Pickle.—The National Pickle Packers Association's selection of Dill L. Dads In My Office

I'll never forget how he looked that day
When he pushed a bar of candy my way,
I'll never forget the expression he wore,
That was the first, now there are four;
And very recent, with eyes like stars,
Another dad passed out some cigars,
He couldn't have shown a bit more joy
With that first cigar that said "It's a boy!"
For he was as proud as a dad could be
With this new one added to his already three,
Yes, our office has fathers, as all offices do,
Some have just one child, and some have two,
Some have three and some have four,
And a few of the dads have even more,
They talk of their kids and their faces shine,
"You know," they say, "that youngster of mine—"
And they tell something cute their boy or girl did
And you know he dearly loves that little kid,
Or however many God's sent to his care,
It costs lots of money for clothes that they wear,
It's expensive to feed them, to take care of their needs,
Those little ol' youngsters who grow up just like weeds,
They suddenly realize the house is too small,
There are not enough bedrooms to take care of them all,
All at once they grow up—and that first family break,
When the oldest one leaves is sure hard to take,
For only too fast Dad finds they are grown
And the next thing they're married with kids of their own,
The years that he's worried, quite needless, oft', too,
Even though they're away, his worries aren't through,
For when they have sickness, or anything bad,
It hurts just as much, 'cause he's still their dad,
From the first littte whimper, the first little cry,
The heating the bottle, the keeping them dry,
He has wanted to give them the best that he could,
Wants them to be happy, wants them to be good,
Because he's so proud of whatever they do
And he hopes in his heart they'll be proud of him, too,
And I hope so, too, as I watch his eyes glisten
When he talks of his kids and I sit and listen,
For no matter which kid, and no matter which dad,
The look on his face makes me always feel glad.

What They Say In Letters to Editor

THE REV. E. DAVID ALLEN (President of Pettis County NAACP)—Why An NAACP in Sedalia?—In the news today we find several names such as CORE, MCM, NAACP and many others. The American people have been asking themselves and others what do they mean? Are they subversive in their intentions? Why should there exist such an organization in America? Why in the land of the free and the home of the brave should there be such organizations? Who wants to belong to any of these liberty groups?

We shall attempt to answer some of these questions. These organizations are started for the sole purpose of securing more freedom as guaranteed by our constitution of the United States of America. The minority groups represented by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is an organization that meets the problem of human injustice head on. It is an organization that is comprised of both Negroes and white people who want to see true democracy practiced in this country. Its membership is composed of both Negroes and white Americans dedicated to the cause of freedom for all peoples. Membership is solicited from all persons who are willing to fight in a legal manner for the betterment of this country. A member of any race, whether he be Jewish, Polish, German or any other race is sincerely asked to join the fight to make America a better place to live for all people. The main purpose is to allow any and all persons the right to the pursuit of happiness, the right to economic security according to one's ability and freedom to the other advantages of being an American.

The minority groups will not be detoured in their aspirations. One hundred years has elapsed since the emancipation. The Negro takes inventory of his position. He has accomplished some things which is true. But there is so much that he has longed for and been denied that now some Americans feel that he is impatient. The Negro feels that if he can fight and die on the battlefields under the guise of "freedom" then he too wants the benefits of his labor. Then, too, he is an American first. You may call him a Negro because of his color but down in his heart there is no segment of American population any more loyal to this country than the American Negro.

The NAACP is sponsored by "branches"; that is, each locality that wants to can form a group and be issued a charter, providing they qualify under the national office rules. Now in our city we have the Pettis County Branch of the NAACP. The majority of the Negroes and some of the white people are its members.

Some might ask why do we need such an organization in Sedalia? The answer is also quite simple. The minority in our city is not given its equal share of this democracy. There are many areas of improvement that need the attention of this organization. All one has to do is to look around him. Where do the Negroes live in Sedalia? Where do they work and what is their source of income? You see Negroes on TV bowling and playing golf. Why do we not see Negroes bowling or playing golf on the city courses? Why do you not see any on the bowling lanes? Have you ever noticed that you have not seen a Negro waiting to be worked on by a dentist in Sedalia?

We, the NAACP, feel that there is much work to be done right here at home. We do not bowl because there is not an alley in town that will admit us. We are Negroes. We go to the Air Base to play golf because there is not a place to play that will admit us. We are Negroes. The Sedalia Negro goes sometimes 85 miles to get a tooth pulled. The reason is quite simple. There is not a dentist in Sedalia that will work on Negroes. Take our stores in Sedalia. How many Negroes have you seen doing anything other than menial chores? Have you seen a Negro clerk in a super market?

Our community is more fortunate than some. First of all let me say here that the white people of our city are more conscious of the progress of our city than many. Here we have sober-minded people who want to right any injustice that is brought before them. That's as a whole.

Then, too, the leaders of the Negroes are not radical in their approach. They realize that any accomplishment that is to be fruitful must come from the conference table. So with the co-ordination of the two, no protest marches or demonstrations are forseen. Progress is being made and in the right direction, thanks to the enlightened minds of our city.

As president of the local branch of the NAACP, I answer the many requests why this organization is needed in our city.

Democracy is the job of everyone; not the lawmakers, but the man on the street. All the laws in the land may not change a man's heart. But the reason why one may be as he is, is because he has not given himself a chance to know the other person or peoples. When one does that he sometimes is surprised to find that they are just like him. Their culture and their aspirations are the same for they are all of the one race, American.

Racial hatred is ignorance. Anyway you figure it, it is nothing more than plain, simple ignorance of the other person. When one really knows, there is no question.

Take the case of the integrated schools, for instance. After children have gone to school together they become to know one another. The "isms" and the lies about one another will vanish. The old timers will persist that they exist but the children know better. Some cafes where school children congregate may even want to continue to practice their segregated policy, thinking that their business will be hurt. This is a myth that has been distorted to such an extent that the lie has lived in many cases. America was built by men with courage, men with vision. Many who did not have what America called for passed from the scene of history and their names are not even a dot on a page.

When the day comes that all America will enjoy the freedom of equality, organizations such as the NAACP, CORE and the MCM will fade from the scene such as the "carpet-baggers," the "Whigs" and the "Tories." But until that day they will be found working and crying as Moses did to Pharoh: "Let my people go."

FINDING THE WAY

Hunger of the Soul

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D. D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

On frequent occasions the ancient meaning of a word becomes a keyhole to the present. For instance, take the verb "to starve." Originally, it meant to become rigid or stiff, or to perish. Ultimately, this became restricted to the starvation or death that comes from lack of food.

To know that millions must live on a cup of rice a day, or exist with gnawing hurt and burning anger while little children suffer, gives new poignancy to the word "to starve."

Yet this world knows another kind of starvation. Christian martyr Dietrich Bonhoeffer was made to spend years in a prison cell because of his faith. He wrote of the way in which his friends spoke of his bravery. Of himself, he wrote:

"Am I then really that which other men tell of? Or am I only what I myself know of myself? Restless and longing and sick, like a bird in a cage, struggling for breath, as though hands were compressing my throat, yearning for colors, for flowers, for the voices of birds, thirsting for words of kindness, for neighborliness, tossing in expectation of great events, powerlessly trembling for friends at an infinite distance, weary and empty at praying, at thinking, at making faint, and ready to say farewell to it all."

This is the hunger that many are forced to endure because of the tyranny of men.

Our years have been inspired by the knowledge of those who have resisted the temptation to "turn these stones into bread," who have withstood the hunger knowing that "nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord."

Now there is a world hunger. Millions are starved for freedom. Sometimes they settle for an ersazt kind of food and miss the meaning of responsible freedom.

Sometimes they rebel as the mobs that poured down Paris streets chanting their songs of hatred for those who had said "Let them have cake." Sometimes they stand in quiet, nonviolent resistance of those who refuse to admit that freedom belongs to all citizens, not just to certain citizens.

Once a man has known that he can secure bread, he is not going to willingly starve. Once a man has sensed the meaning of freedom, he will feel starved unless he has savored its taste.

Suddenly there is another dimension to starvation. One remembers Jesus standing at the edge of the crowds, in that ancient setting of His day, quietly saying, "Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled."

It is the hunger that we must feel, or we shall miss the bread of life.

Polly's Pointers

Love Those Puppets

By POLLY CRAMER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR POLLY — Children love puppet shows. So let them make their own by painting a stage from a suit box lid. Cut out the inside to have a "frame" about two inches wide. Tape to the play table with masking tape and then drape a sheet or blanket around the table to conceal the little actors behind the stage. Let the children draw the characters of their favorite story on stiff paper, cut out and tape to ice cream sticks. The child grasps the stick to make his puppets perform on the stage.

Boxes of alphabet noodles are fun for children to arrange into words and then paste on colored paper. Also you can cut out blocks of stiff papef, with a letter in each block and let the child arrange his own words. Or have you tried a "scrambled egg" spelling game? For example, put letters as "ybo" on one piece of paper and then have the child unscramble and put the correct word "boy" on a blank piece.

MRS. LEO, a first grade teacher.

DEAR POLLY — Those who have tiny babies might find that my hint saves sheets. Take a clean diaper and four supporters from an old girdle. Use either pink or blue ribbons to tie the garters to the crib rails and just snap a clean diaper up near the head of the bed. This way when baby spits up his milk, all you have to do is change the diaper.

E. G.

DEAR POLLY—If you or any of the girls buy a knitting bag that does not have "rest buttons" on the bottom to shield the bag from hard wear when it is set down, try this: Sew or glue small sewing buttons on the bottom of the bag. They will prolong the life of the bag and keep it clean. As I was fixing two new ones this morning, I thought maybe other readers would like to do it, too.

MRS. B. E. H.

GIRLS—Perhaps many of you place a diaper under the baby's head. I know I always did. But fastening with supporters is really a new twist and would keep it from getting wrinkled as baby moves about.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When making a dress or housecoat with a full skirt, try running a basting thread through the gathers and then pin the work to a smooth surface like a bed or davenport to space the gathers evenly. The skirt is much easier to handle and work with and when the gathers are even, proceed as usual.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JFK's Speech Spells Peace's Necessity

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his grandson, Drew Arnold.

Washington, D. C.
June 13, 1963.

Dear Grandson,

I told you that I would write you again on the subject of war. I had not really meant to write so soon, but I have been re-reading President Kennedy's speech at American University on the subject of war and peace; and also I have been in Staunton, Va., where I visited the home where Woodrow Wilson was born.

President Wilson made one of the great efforts of this century to bring peace to the world—and failed. That failure cost him his health; he suffered a stroke and died a few years later. But even more tragic, it cost the world its health. For shortly after his failure to get American support for the League of Nations after World War I, the world began to drift into another war.

The chief reason Woodrow Wilson failed was because a group of Republican senators put politics ahead of peace. They figured they could make political hay for themselves, though at the expense of the lives of the children who later were to grow up and fight another war. Probably they didn't realize they were planting the seeds of the next war by their vicious attacks on the peace treaty, but they were.

This was a period which I lived through as a young man, and it all came back to me as I visited the white-pillared home in Staunton where Wilson was born.

Kennedy and Right Wing

After that, I re-read President Kennedy's speech of last Monday, and it seemed to me quite clear that Kennedy was trying to counteract the same group of political trouble-makers who upset the peace in Wilson's day; and make them understand the awesome, terrible consequences if once again we let peace slip through our fingers.

I have never questioned President Kennedy's sincerity. He knows the suffering of war and he is in dead earnest about preventing another war. But I have sometimes questioned his political courage. It has seemed to me that sometimes he is too timid, too much concerned over the fact that he was elected by a narrow margin, too worried over the noisy, usually unreasonable, sometimes vicious opposition from the right wing.

But in this speech at American University, which I hope you will read, the President spelled out in very simple language the risks we take if we do not work out some kind of peace arrangement with the Russians. He points out that "peace does not require that each man love this neighbor; only that they live together with mutual tolerance."

He emphasied what I have reported from Russia, that twenty million Russians lost their lives in the last war, and Russia does not want another war. He also pointed out what I have maintained—that the Russians will keep a peace agreement; or, as the President put it, "Even the most hostile nations can be relied upon to accept and keep those treaty obligations."

Dangerous Politics

When you get a little older you will come to understand that politics can be a very deadly weapon; and that some politicians inflame people's passions just for the sake of votes, not for the purpose of promoting peace or better understanding among men.

I am quite sure that most of President Kennedy's political opposition would not do this. Such senators as Kuchel from your state of California, or John Cooper from Kentucky, or Javits from New York put their country's interest ahead of political ambition. But there are a lot of right-wingers who don't.

A few years ago it was the McCarthyites and some of the extremists among President Kennedy's own church who led the right wing advocates of preventive war. Today it is some of the renegade Protestants who have been kicked out of their own churches and who now make money preaching hate, bigotry, and preventive war over the airways.

Thanks to the wise leadership of Pope John, whom history will record as one of the great leaders of this generation, the Catholic extremists are much fewer in number and less vocal in advocating war. But sometimes I think the renegade Protestants have more than made up for them.

These were the voices which President Kennedy was trying to answer in his speech at American University.

I also think he was aiming his speech at the right wing inside the Communist world. Because what most of us don't realize in this country is that the Soviet is no longer a monolithic state, that it has ebbs and flows of political opinion, not as strong as ours, but growing stronger.

We also don't realize that Khrushchev is no longer the complete leader of the Kremlin. He has to answer to public opinion, not as much as in a democracy, but somewhat. And he has to listen to other Communist leaders, including the Red army and factions which distrust the United States just as much as we distrust them.

So the job of bridging this gap of distrust between two nations which have been preaching distrust for about 45 years is a very difficult one. Yet we don't bridge it we will be in for war once again. And it won't be the kind of war your father fought with bayonets at Okinawa or your grandfather fought, with squads right and squads left on the parade ground in 1918.

This is what President Kennedy is trying to head off, and is why I hope you and other boys will read his speech carefully.

Love from
Your Grandfather.

The Doctor Says

Staph Germs: Prime Villain In Picnic Food Poisonings

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Picnics are fun for human beings and ants. The fun of the human beings can be spoiled, however, if food poisoning rears its ugly head. One of the commonest types of food poisoning is that caused by the staphylococcus.

The presence of this ordinary pus germ in food does no harm unless the food has been allowed to stand around in the warm air for several hours before it is eaten.

This often happens when, for instance, potato salad is made in the morning and not eaten until late afternoon, or when the egg salad sandwiches left over from the picnic lunch prove tempting to appetites renewed by an afternoon of fun.

The germs themselves are not the cause of the trouble. It is the poison they produce in their spare time. This poison does not alter the appearance, the taste, or the smell of the food in any way, so you won't know what hit you until two to four hours later. Then you may get a very sudden attack of vomiting and diarrhea.

It is rarely fatal, but for a few hours it may make you wish you were dead. It was formerly believed that the staphylococci were always introduced into the food by a boil or other running sore on the hand of the person preparing the food.

That is indeed a convenient way to do it, but we now know that the germs usually come from the nose. Even in a healthy person the nose may be a vast reservoir of these germs.

Thus, if the cook has a cold and his or her hands become contaminated from the nose, the conditions for contaminating the food are ideal.

Even without a cold, a sudden draft may cause the person preparing the food to sneeze, and what is more natural than to cover the sneeze with the hand?

If, under such circumstances, you must sneeze, be sure to wash your hands thoroughly with soap and water after this or any other contact with your nose before preparing any food.

The poison from staphylococci is destroyed by boiling; but who ever boiled a potato salad or an egg salad? Beware also of custards and cream-filled pastries.

A good plan is to carry some sort of refrigerating device with you to the picnic. Keep the sandwich mixes cold and well covered until time to eat them. Then make the sandwiches on the spot.

Potato chips are safer than potato salad and wieners are safer than chicken salad. Barbecued foods eaten right off the grill are safest of all.

When a large number of persons get sick following a meal it is important to save specimens of food, vomit, and stools, preferably in clean, screw-topped containers so that your doctor or local health officer can take steps to determine the cause.

The name "Pangolin" may suggest a sort of exotic fruit, but is actually a scaly anteater with a tail twice as long as his body. Pangolins are found in Africa and in tropical Asia.

4-H Camp

The sign-up date for Pettis County 4-H camp will be June 18-28. It will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The camp fee for Pettis County will again be $6.85 per member. This includes 25 cents for handicraft and 35 cents for accident insurance in addition to meals and lodging. Start saving your money for your 4-H camp fee. This will be an experience that you will really enjoy.

Outdoor living is becoming more and more popular with boys and girls each year. Not only do boys and girls enjoy camping, but the adults and families in our nation have had a very high upward trend for outdoor camping the past few years.

An interesting addition to the program this year for the older camp will be a workshop on dating courtesies, archery, and a panel discussion by a group of foreign students. The dates for camps are as follows: older (age 12 and over) — July 15-18, and younger (12 and under)—July 18-21. Pettis and Johnson Counties will be camping together again this year with the split age division.

4-H Judging Day

The Pettis County 4-H Judging Day will be held Thursday, June 20, at the First Methodist Church. The judging event will include classes for 4-H members enrolled in home economics, woodwork, and vegetables. The livestock and dairy judging days have already been held.

We hope that the 4-H members in each of these projects will be able to judge. In judging, you need to make decisions. Decision making in this manner is good training for you. All through life both boys and girls and adults have to make decisions. The day-to-day decisions made up through adulthood does a lot in forming the pattern for your life.

The time schedule for the judging event will be as follows: foods, 9-12 a.m.; vegetables, 9-10 a.m.; woodwork, 10-11 a.m.; home management, 10-12 a.m.; clothing and knitting, 1-4 p.m.; and home grounds, 2-4 p.m.

4-H Horsemanship Round-Up

The date for the 4-H Horsemanship Round-up is Saturday, Aug. 31, 1 p.m. The event will be held at the State Fair Coliseum.

The 4-H Council Horsemanship Round-Up Committee met in April to draw up plans for the event. Those on the committee are Raymond Wasson, chairman, Louis Staples, assistant chairman, K. E. Anderson, J. D. Gregory, and George Nix.

The following classes will be held: grand entry, showmanship, pole bending, barrell race, western horsemanship, flag race, stake race, reining class, and musical chairs. Notice that the musical chair class and the western horsemanship class have been added this year.

Another change is that for the timed event classes and the reining class that horses will be divided up according to height, 48 inches and over and under 48 inches. There will be two age divisions age 14 and over and under 14 for the horsemanship, showmanship, and western horsemanship classes. Everyone will participate in the musical chair class.

Queen Contest

At the last Pettis County 4-H Council meeting the group voted to sponsor a queen to the State Fair. All 4-H girls who are 17 years of age are encouraged to enter. Information will be sent to those girls who are eligible, including the necessary information to enter. The final selection for the Pettis County 4-H Queen candidate will be made at the Pettis County 4-H Achievement Day and will be crowned on Friday afternoon at the Achievement Day assembly. The queen, then, will reign at the Pettis County 4-H Livestock Show on Aug. 5.

Venison is the most highly prized of all game meat.

Descendant of Daniel Boone To Miss 'Boone' Launching

When the invitation came inviting her to attend the launching of the ship Daniel Boone (SSBN 629) Mrs. Susan Armstrong, wife of Judge Frank Armstrong, 725 West Seventh, was definitely pleased but a little baffled. To be sure she is the great great great granddaughter of America's most famous frontiersman, but how did the Navy find out?

Mrs. Armstrong is a member of the DAR, but she went in through someone on the other side of her family. How did it happen they found her—but they did. She would so love to go but has been ill and will be unable to do so.

The invitation, which came from the U.S. Navy Dept., Mare Island, Navy Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif., reads as follows:

"The Shipyard commander requests the honor of your presence at the launching of the Daniel Boone (SSBN 629) in the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif., Saturday, the 22nd of June, 1963. The ceremony begins at 3:15 p.m. Launching time at 4 p.m. Mrs. James Wakelin, sponsor." In the lower left hand corner of the invitation is "Please present at the gate."

Daniel Boone was born Feb. 11, 1735, in Bucks County, Pa., the son of Squire Boone. He had a remarkable constitution, for frontiersmen had to learn the forest and how to protect themselves from the Indians who were in them. Daniel, growing up in this kind of life, was an expert on how to escape imminent danger and acquired fame as a hunter. He grew restless ,and when the family set out on the long journey through Maryland and Virginia, they met a family named Bryan, who had a young girl, Rebecca. Boone, then a young man, fell in love with Rebecca and married her.

He liked solitude, and so he built a cabin in the Yadkin River where they lived until the white settlers increased there, then he moved on. Daniel and Rebecca had a large family, and one of them was a daughter, Jemima.

A group of families had gathered together in a settlement, Bryan Station, and on June 14, 1776, Jemima Boone and two other girls, Betsy and Frances Callaway, got in the only canoe they had and went across the stream to pick wild flowers. They were having a lot of fun paddling along in the water close to the shore when several big Indians appeared from the thicket and grabbed the girls. Their loud shrieks were heard, but they had the only canoe. Daniel Boone and Col. Callaway were both away at the time, but the next morning they set out looking for them.

The band of men they led through the forest went 30 miles, finally found buffalo tracks, went ten miles farther and found the Indians just as they were ready to kindle a fire to cook. They surprised the Indians, frightening them with guns, got the girls and returned them to the settlement.

Jemima Boone was the great great grandmother of Mrs. Armstrong. She later married a Callaway, who was one of her rescuers. One of their sons was Larkin S. Callaway, father of Susan Callaway, grandmother of Mrs. Armstrong, and one of the ancestors for whom she was named. There were many Susans in the family on both sides, Mrs. Armstrong said.

Susan Callaway married Solomon S. Shobe and they were the parents of Mrs. Armstrong's mother, Mary Virginia Shobe, who married Samuel N. Stevinson, Susan Stevinson grew up in Columbia and it was there she met Frank Armstrong, from Sedalia, when he was a student at the University of Missouri.

Mrs. Frank Armstrong

Boone went on to Kentucky and is credited with founding the state, and it was at Bryan Station, Ky., where they had the fort which has recently been restored by the DAR Chapter, Lexington County. The women stayed in the fort and made bullets during the seige and it was the women, also, who went to the spring for water because they would not be attacked. The old James Bryan home there, Mrs. Armstrong said, has also been restored.

The Boones, Callaways and other families moved on to Missouri and the settlement here was near Defiance. There was no system of laws there and so Daniel Boone, at the head of the group, served as magistrate of the community to settle arguments. The court was held under a huge oak tree which was known as the judgment tree. It still stands as does the home of Nathan Boone, which is now a museum.

Mrs. Armstrong stated that there is a family story of Daniel Boone who was a wood carver and made his own casket of walnut which he kept in his room, and even measured himself in it. Then one day some old man in the neighborhood died and there was no casket for him, so Boone gave the casket he had made for himself, and when he died they had to buy one.

Daniel Boone died on Sept. 26, 1820, at the home of his daughter, Jemima, where he had gone to spend the day, and was buried in the Bryan Cemetery near Defiance. The bodies of Daniel and Rebecca Boone were removed later and taken to Kentucky after much argument between the two states, but there is a monument at the graves where the bodies had been, and part of Boone's body is still said to be.

According to one historian there was no falsehood in his nature and he performed great deeds as other men performed smaller ones. He never professed religion before the public but was one of the most religious men who ever lived.

All kinds of stories have been told about him and one of the stories in his very late life was that he was posed to shoot a deer, when it came toward him it frightened him to death. He was found still with the gun on his shoulder, aimed. This story even got into newspapers and his comment, when he heard it, was: "I never would have believed that if I had told it myself."

First State Savings Association Observes

50 YEARS OF GROWTH

1913

This week completes a half-century of service to this community . . .

J. E. MITCHELL, Executive Vice President and Director of First State Savings, first joined the association as assistant secretary in 1957. In 1959, he was elected to the board of directors. In this same year, Mitchell was appointed Missouri Savings and Loan State Supervisor and was granted a leave of absence from the employment of the Association, but continued to serve as a director. He returned to active employment of the Association in 1960, when he became managing officer, which position he holds today.
The Mitchells live at 2431 Plaza. Their two sons are attending college. Robert is a junior at Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, and Charles is a freshman at Drury College, Springfield. Mrs. Mitchell is an English teacher at Smith-Cotton High School.

J. E. Mitchell Reflects On Past And Predicts Future

In 1958, when we moved into our present building, and in 1960, during Sedalia's Centennial Year observance, the experience of growth enjoyed by the First State Savings Association, of Sedalia, was reviewed in The Sedalia Democrat-Capital. Elsewhere in this edition, there are some facts about the 50 year history of First State and the savings and loan industry.

But what about the decade of the 60's?

The years 1961-62 revealed new peak levels in savings flow into First State Savings. The economic climate generally has been, and is, favorable for savings. Since savings and loans, like other thrift institutions, are dependent for their operations upon savings of the public, the factor of caution (safety) on the part of investors or savers and that of rising personal income both play important roles in the stimulation of savings. Obviously, these factors are still present in our community and as a result, the savings flow is expected to continue through 1963 and the middle sixties at a record-breaking rate.

More than half of the gross income of savings associations is channeled to account holders as dividends on their savings. This distribution represents one portion of a threefold claim upon savings and loan income. The second comprises the cost of operations —that is, the day-to-day expenses of doing business. Both of these portions channel money into the local economy to the definite benefit to all local citizens. The third portion is represented by reserve allocations—further safety measures in the management of the business.

As a result of the record savings funds available for investment in home loans, the second reason for the industry (thrift being the prime reason for savings and loans), housing financed by the conventional mortgage has continued to increase, but at a somewhat less vigorous rate. The peak reached in 1960 followed several years of more than moderate activity, and therefore, the pickup in 1961-62 came after construction of new homes had already reached a high plateau. New Sedalia housing units started in 1961 come to 100 and accounted for 39% of the loans made in that year. The experience in Sedalia in 1962 was 60 units started and accounted for 28% of the loans made.

Throughout the past generation, there has been an almost unbroken trend upward in the proportion of the nation's families owning their own homes. This trend toward home ownership is evident in Sedalia, and is rooted in favorable characteristics of the community's economic and social life. The availability of mortgage credit is among the important factors which have made ownership of homes possible, for the typical family requires such financing to achieve owner status. First State Savings will continue to strive to serve this community and nearby communities not only throughout the sixties but for another half century and beyond, as the institution of Thrift and Home ownership.

First State Welcomes Your Savings Account

CHARLES O. BARNETT, Controller, has filled this position since October, 1960, when he came to First State from Kirksville, Mo., where he was employed by the Kirksville Savings and Loan Association. Barnett is 30 years of age and a graduate of Northeast Missouri State College. He and his wife Mary and two children reside at 2416 Golf Avenue. He maintains good accounting control in the teller area and bookkeeping department and maintains daily and monthly reports which provides management with important information regarding operations. The controller studies new methods and new equipment to assist management in improving procedures.

Services And Lending Policies

The First State Savings Association, as all savings and loan associations, has two functions: It offers savings accounts and it makes real estate loans — nearly all of which are loans on single family homes to people in the community. In a sense, it is a "specialty shop" in the provision of financial services, and its talents and energies are used to develop these specialties to the greatest extent possible.

Nearly all loans made by First State, and all other savings and loan associations, are made to families in the community for the purchase or construction of single family homes. The loans are secured by a first mortgage on the home, repayable monthly over a term normally of from 15 to 20 years. As a general rule the interest rate yield on the loan depends upon the ratio of the loan. Thus, the higher percentage the house and the term of the loan to the appraised value of and longer term loans have higher interest rates.

First State Offers 13 Account Forms

By saving here, you can select from as many as thirteen different account forms, one of which should fit your needs.

1. INDIVIDUAL OWNERSHIP. Account is in your name and control alone. At death, distribution through probate procedure, or if no will, according to state inheritance laws.

2. MINOR OWNERSHIP. Children can be account owners when they can sign their names for identification purposes. Minors may also hold ownership subject to withdrawal upon court order only.

3. JOINT TENANCY OWNERSHIP with right of survivorship. Account held in your name and names of others you want. Usually, account is in name of husband and wife. You may specify that either joint owner, or the signature of both be required for withdrawals. On death of a joint owner, his interest terminates. Account becomes property of survivor(s).

4. TENANCY IN COMMON OWNERSHIP. Ownership in your name and names of others you designate. Signatures of all parties to account necessary for withdrawal. On death of an owner, his interest passes to his estate.

5. INDIVIDUAL TRUST OWNERSHIP. You alone handle the account as trustee including withdrawals and changing of any or all beneficiaries. When trust terminates after a stated time, or at your death, account is payable to designated beneficiaries.

6. CO-TRUSTEE OWNERSHIP. You may open a savings account with another person and act as co-trustees for designated beneficiaries. Each trustee has right to withdraw funds, and you may appoint or change beneficiaries. If one trustee should die, survivor has sole control of account. After stated time, or on death of both trustees, account is payable to beneficiaries.

7. FIDUCIARY OWNERSHIP. As guardian, executor and administrator you may hold and control funds for some other person or persons. You are responsible to court of jurisdiction.

8. SOLE PROPRIETOR OWNERSHIP. As a sole proprietor, account held in the name of the business makes the account a portion of the business assets.

9. PARTNERSHIP OWNERSHIP. Authority as to who may withdraw is designated in declaration of partnership. Both general and limited partnership may hold accounts in this capacity.

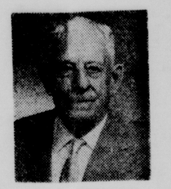
10. CORPORATION OWNERSHIP. Corporation may be specifically authorized to hold ownership in corporate name. Those authorized to withdraw funds are designated by corporation resolution.

11. ORGANIZATION OWNERSHIP. Societies, clubs, lodges, unions, etc., may hold account. By resolution, organization designates those authorized to withdraw funds.

12. PENSION FUND OR TRUST OWNERSHIP. A pension trust fund or other trust may hold ownership under authority granted in trust agreement.

13. GOVERNMENT OR GOVERNMENT AGENCY OWNERSHIP. Account may be held by any public agency—Federal or State government, any county, city, town, village, township, special district subdivisions of government—where laws permit.

President A. L. Pringle A Saver 42 Years



A. L. PRINGLE

Forty-two years ago, back in 1921, A. L. Pringle, now the president of First State Savings Association, opened a savings account with the young and growing Sedalia Savings & Loan Association, and he has had a finanical interest as a saver since that time. His is probably the oldest continuous savings account at First State.

Because, Sedalia Savings & Loan was a Sedalia institution concerned with financing of homes for Sedalia people, Pringle expressed more than a passing interest in its operation. In 1933, he was elected a member of the board of directors, and he has been a member of the board since that time without interreption. John Sullivan was executive secretary back in 1933, and officers and members of the board of directors included W. M. Johns, Ira Melton, Arthur Klang, Leon Archias, Sr., and Henry Harris.

Because of his interest in seeing the Sedalia Savings & Loan grow and serve the home needs of the people of Sedalia, Pringle was elected president of the institution in 1951 on the death of W. M. Johns, then president, and he has held that position continuously since that time.

Pringle came to Sedalia in January of 1904, and went to work at the new Missouri Pacific Shops and was there in 1905, when the first engine was put into the shops for shop attention. In 1913, he was promoted to Erecting Foreman, a position he held for 26 years until his retirement from Missouri Pacific employment on February 1, 1939. Pringle and his family of four daughters and a son resided for many years at 722 East Broadway. His wife passed away several years ago and his children are residing away from Sedalia, so President Pringle makes his home at the Terry Hotel.

Since 1921, when President Pringle made his initial savings deposit he has seen the First State Savings Association (then Sedalia Savings & Loan Association) grow from less than a half million to its present $11,454,498.73. He has seen the dividend payments to savers grow from a few hundred dollars annually to the nearly $390,000.00 dividend payment to be made this year.

President Pringle says, "This continuous growth, which has basically been upward each year without interruption could only come because of the sound financial character of the institution, because of good policy-making by its board of directors and because of its efficient operation by management and operating staff."

President Pringle continued with, "As long as First State continues to answer the home financing needs of Sedalia and this area, to operate efficiently, to offer friendly and sound help to those it serves, its growth will continue so that fifty years from now it will be celebrating its 100th birthday as it is this week observing its 50th."

Federal Savings and Loan Agencies Give Financial Stability To Associations

First State Savings Association was chartered on June 24, 1913, and was one of some 7,000 associations receiving charters prior to World War I. The greatest growth of building associations — or savings and loan associations — has come during the 20th century, although, the establishment of such associations in the United States came as early as 1831.

All savings and loan associations prior to 1935 operated under state law, which was a situation that existed in the commercial bank field from 1830 until 1863, when national banks were first chartered.

On November 4, 1937, First State Savings became a member of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, which is a permanent agency of the United States Government which insures accounts of members of savings and loan associations for each account up to $10,000.00 against all types of losses.

First State, like all insured associations, must meet rigid standards of good management to be members of FS&LIC, and all associations are periodically examined and subject to supervision by this agency. Savings account holders pay nothing for this protection as the cost is borne entirely by the association.

Although, chartered and supervised by the state, as is First State, such a state chartered association became eligible for membership in the Federal Home Loan Bank System in 1932. As a member, associations may invest surplus funds at a nominal rate of interest with the Federal Home Loan Bank System, or in periods of high loan demand they may borrow funds at a favorable rate to take care of community needs.

There has never been a penny lost by an account holder in an insured savings and loan association since the creation of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation by the National Housing Act of 1934. This accounts for the tremendous growth of saving and loan associations across the country during the last twenty-nine years, and for the fact that thousands are saving millions at First State Savings and Loan Association today.

If you want your surplus funds to earn best returns, the management and staff of First State invite you to open a savings account now and enjoy generous semi-annual dividends.

MISS THELMA HOWIE, Teller, has been employed by First State for early ten years, since July 1953. In addition to her duties as a teller, it is also her responsibility to keep a constant check on real estate taxes of borrowers, and to see that tax amounts are correct and that tax payment disbursements are properly made to various cities and counties. Miss Howie came to Sedalia in 1945 from Wichita, Kansas, where she had been employed by Kress and Company. She resides with her mother at 321 North Prospect.

MRS. LOLA NICHOLS, Teller, has been in First State's employ since October 1961, when she and her husband, Allen, and two children, Vicki, 15, and David 12, moved here from Columbia, Missouri. In addition to her work as a teller, Mrs. Nichols has plenty of various duties to keep her busy. Daily filing, receiving and recording mail payments and deposits, and checking descriptions on abstracts all come within her scope of work. She previously was employed in the Boone County Recorders office in Columbia, Mo. She and her family reside at 1100 South Ohio.

DONALD R. BRADEN, Loan Service Officer, came to First State in February, 1962, from Coffeyville, Kansas, where he had been employed by First Federal Savings and Loan. However, he is a native Missourian, born and reared in El Dorado Springs where his parents continue to reside. He was graduated from Joplin Business College in 1959, and since that time has made the Savings and Loan business his career. His job is comprised of various duties as receiving and disbursing monies, opening new savings accounts, answering customers' questions and general accounting. His primary concern is that of collections. He is 28 years old and resides at 615 West Broadway.

MRS. BEATRICE BEARD, Insurance Manager, started her second employment period with First State in 1960. She was employed priorily for two years. It is her responsibility to see that adequate insurance is maintained on all real estate on which First State has made a loan as a protection to the home owner as well as First State. Customers rely on her ability to suggest adequate protection through proper coverage. Mrs. Beard also assists in accounting and record keeping work. She is married to Noah Beard and they have three children at home. Their home is in Southern Hills.

MRS. EMMA LEE MILLER, Bookkeeper, started her employment with First State in October, 1962, in the postion of bookkeeper. She is the former Emma Lee Schilicting and is a native Sedalian. She and her husband, David, and two sons David Jr., 12; and Danny, 7, reside at 112 East 10th Street. The proving and recording of all daily business is her chief responsibility, and she has a complete working knowledge of the modern accounting equipment in use at First State. In addition to her bookkeeping work, she handles some secretarial work when time allows.

Rx for Mental Health

By KEN ALLEN

Editor, Albert Lea Evening Tribune

Minnesota clinic finds that counseling family members together is effective.

Most mentally ill persons don't need hospitalization, but that was once the only treatment available—until communities like Albert Lea, Minn., showed the way with outpatient clinics

WHEN PRESIDENT KENNEDY presented his mental-health program to Congress earlier this year, he could have been describing a system of psychiatric medicine that has been in effect in Albert Lea, Minn., for a dozen years.

The President's proposals parallel the experience of the Southern Minnesota Mental Health Center, which provides psychiatric and psychological service for 50,000 Minnesotans.

It was in July of 1950 that the members of the Freeborn County Public Health Nursing Service Auxiliary learned from the state mental-health commissioner that an outpatient psychiatric clinic might be established in Southern Minnesota. These women, guided by Maureen Wetch, then women's editor of The Albert Lea Evening Tribune, began a campaign to bring the clinic to Albert Lea. They enlisted the help of physicians, nurses, clergymen, and Tribune editors in their campaign, later bringing in the Chamber of Commerce and bewildered businessmen who scarcely knew what they were promoting.

The City Council and the County Board of Commissioners agreed to become cosponsors and to appropriate small sums each year to pay rent and incidentals—mostly as a token of good faith. The state took on the obligation of recruiting, supervising, and paying the staff.

With a great deal of self-consciousness, the clinic opened its doors to the public. The state had been able to hire a clinical psychologist, a psychiatric social worker, and a receptionist but could provide a psychiatrist only one day a week.

A local advisory committee of citizens was recruited. They met faithfully to hear staff reports, consult on problems, and offer suggestions. Often as not, decisions were based on instinct because there was only scanty information in even the scholarly journals.

For instance, there was Case No. 9. A 15-year-old high-school girl was torturing herself with psychological fears, eating too much, and sneezing every few seconds while awake. She had gone to 32 allopathic and osteopathic physicians with no lasting results.

At the Center, the girl was given sedatives and a nonconvulsive shock treatment. Soon she was talking easily and freely to the psychiatrist—and she stopped sneezing for the first time in 100 days. She was put on a diet, taken from school, and placed with a family to do what she wanted to do—be a domestic. Prognosis: good.

And there was "Sally." She was a capable and energetic office worker in a factory. But she dressed in run-down saddle shoes and covered her ample figure with unbecoming "house" dresses. The teasing of male coworkers set her off on crying spells that were interfering with her work. Her employer faced a hard choice: dismissal or rehabilitation. He finally got her to the Center by referral of her physician.

IN SIX WEEKS, Sally became a different person. She lost a great deal of weight, began using lipstick, and matched smart clothing with a new personality. When the shop kidding started, she gave as much as she took. Her efficiency rating soared. Gone was the tearful Sally.

Farm people are often suspicious of the sciences that deal with man's mind and its ailments, but here again the Center had some fortunate experiences.

A farmer was brought to the local hospital with all symptoms of a mental breakdown. A hearing had been scheduled for a Monday so the patient could be admitted to a state mental hospital. During a Sunday visit to the hospital, a clinical psychologist asked to see the patient. To all outward appearances, the patient was unbalanced, but a closer look showed a fleck of blood inside one eye. The psychologist called the attending physician, and a more thorough examination was made. As a result, a brain clot was found and ultimately removed.

After surgery, the farmer told what had happened. He had fallen backward from a tractor and struck his head. He could remember nothing from that point until he became conscious in the recovery room. He's now farming 460 rich Minnesota acres and paying taxes rather than being a patient in a tax-supported institution.

AS THE SUCCESSES—and a few failures—piled up, the Center gained state-wide, then national recognition. The United States Public Health Service even sent social workers to study the Center and to collect documentary evidence.

Of the Center's first 342 patients, only nine had been sent on for institutional treatment. "Savings to taxpayers are apparent," The Tribune said. "The cost of a patient in a state institution is not less than $1,000 a year."

As the years passed, the program emphasis shifted. Currently, there is a drive on preventive mental illness. Dr. Arthur Arnold, who now is the full-time pyschiatrist at the Center, is teaching a course to physicians, and seminars are held for nurses, teachers, and factory foremen.

From its experience of a dozen busy and fruitful years, the Southern Minnesota Mental Health Center can advise the President and Congress to move slowly. If they expect overnight results, they are going to be frustrated.

And frustrations bring anxieties.

WIFE INSURANCE:

What is the Dollar Value of a Lady?

NOT SO MANY years ago—I remember it clearly—my mother suggested that perhaps she ought to buy a life-insurance policy. My father was instantly outraged.

"Why?" he demanded. "Haven't I always taken care of you and the children? I never expected you to contribute money to the family's support. Why should you carry insurance?"

His reaction sounds unrealistic now, but it was not unique. A generation or two ago, insurance for women was a rarity—except for small policies bought "to cover funeral expenses." The theory was that only the breadwinner of the family needed full protection, and the breadwinner, of course, was generally the man.

But the harsh economics of our time—plus the greatly increased number of women holding jobs outside the home—have brought about a sharp change in attitude.

In 12 million American families, both husbands and wives work. So do their grown children, including daughters. Therefore, some 25 million women are breadwinners today. They earn $55 billion a year—an average of $2,200 for each woman. Certainly the loss of this income would inflict hardships on countless families.

The same holds true for wives who don't work outside the home. Such a wife's worth is seldom considered—unless her services are lost. Then her husband suddenly discovers that it takes thousands of dollars a year to replace her dedicated, around-the-clock services with hired housekeepers and baby sitters. As a result, wives who don't work—as well as those who do—are increasingly coming to rely on life insurance as a safeguard for their families' future.

The extent to which this has caught on is dramatized by simple figures: in the early 1940s, life insurance carried by women amounted to $10 billion; now it totals more than $100 billion.

One factor in this growth is the extraordinary rise of group life insurance; practically any woman who works can now participate in such a plan. "Group" gives women an opportunity to buy life insurance at a low rate; and if they leave their jobs for any reason—say to rear a family—they usually find it foolish to abandon what they already own. So they convert their group protection to individual policies.

But apart from this, there have been many psychological reasons that have made women insure their lives.

To begin with, our women live in the most heavily insured country in the world. Hard as it is to believe, we Americans spend $38 billion a year on our life-insurance premiums. (This does not include the additional billions we spend on health, fire, accident, automobile, and other kinds of protection.)

Our life premiums actually amount to more than half of the $68 billion we pay in Federal income taxes! You hear a vast amount of griping over the high income tax; but we have become so insurance-minded that we take this cost in our stride.

BESIDES LIFE INSURANCE, women have insured themselves in many other ways, too. After all, in a country where some 10 million persons are injured in accidents every year, it's obvious that a woman can be hurt as seriously as a man; that a woman's surgery can cost as much as a man's; and that fire destroys all possessions alike.

In these types of insurance, women are now covered almost as fully as men. More than 81 million Americans own some form of health-and-accident insurance, and here the women are not far behind the men.

It is only in the matter of life insurance that the ladies have been laggard in the past; and here, as we have seen, they are finally asserting themselves. To find out why, I talked to many women who had acquired life policies in recent weeks. I asked for their basic reasons.

One woman said: "My husband and I have two small children. If there is one thing we are sure of, it's that, by the time they grow up, any young person without a college education is going to be at a disadvantage. I don't want my kids to miss an education, no matter what happens to my husband or me. We both carry life-insurance policies that will guarantee college costs. That was my primary reason for buying life insurance."

Insuring a woman's life makes sense in this age when the loss of a wife and mother can bring financial disaster to a family

By OSCAR SCHISGALL

Another woman told me: "Last year my sister-in-law died at the age of 32. She carried no insurance at all. I saw what happened to my brother who was left with three small kids. He had to hire a combination housekeeper and governess. Most of the women he hired couldn't stand the long hours and hard work that only a mother will accept, so he had to find new help every few months. In between, he had to pay for temporary help and baby sitters. He told me it was costing him about $6,000 a year above the household expenses he had while his wife was alive.

"We, too, have three children. My husband just couldn't afford an extra $6,000 a year on what he earns. So if anything happens to me, I want to be sure there's a fund that will look after their needs."

Next I talked to a woman of 39 who had never married. She was an office manager and earned a good salary. Though she had carried a small life-insurance policy for many years ("to take care of my funeral expenses, if you want the truth"), she had just increased the amount to a considerable sum—almost $40,000.

"I'm trying to be realistic," she said. "The chances are I may never marry. There's nobody around who'll look after me in my later years—unless you consider Social Security a girl's best friend. But Social Security won't be enough, and our office has no pension plan. So I bought the kind of policy that will have a high cash value when I'm in my 60s. I can turn that cash value into an annuity and have a fair income from it. And when I die—well, I love my nieces and nephews, and I won't mind leaving them a nice sum to remember me by."

So it goes. Every woman has her own good reasons for investing in life insurance. As a matter of fact, the 1,500 life-insurance companies in the United States are so confident of women's future participation that many of them are now concentrating on policies which insure husband and wife simultaneously. Children come under such plans, too. Each child, no matter how many there are, begins life with a $1,000 policy.

This new type of family service (each company gives it its own name) provides, through a single premium payment every month, virtually every type of insurance a family requires: fire, theft, liability, and so on. It is the comprehensiveness of the concept, as well as its simplicity and its appreciation of women's value, that has made it flourish.

True, women still have far to go. With more than $600 billion of life insurance now in force in the United States, women have only $100 billion of that amount—only 1/6th the total. But the differential is being lessened every day. For the first time in its history, the Institute of Life Insurance, an association of life-insurance companies, has recognized the trend by creating a Women's Division.

How much life insurance should the average woman carry? Each family must decide that for itself, but here is some helpful advice:

THE WOMEN'S BUREAU of the Department of Labor has said that the average woman may expect to work 25 years of her life. It also points out that the average full-time feminine worker earns $3,300 a year. That means she may expect to earn $82,500 during her lifetime.

Is it the full loss of this amount against which she ought to insure her family? Obviously no such generalizations are possible. I have talked to many families in the $5,000- to $7,500-a-year bracket, and usually the woman's contribution to this total is somewhere around $1,500 a year (because so many married women work only part-time).

Therefore a fairer evaluation of a woman's earning capacity, in these cases, would be to multiply the number of working years ahead by about $1,500. In most of the cases I investigated, the expected lifetime income of these wives was about $30,000. It was this potential income they wanted to protect by as much insurance as they could afford. A similar amount seems logical for wives who do not work outside the home.

One of the oddities of the past—or was it one of the failures?—was that few women became insurance agents, and almost none made their way into the top echelons of insurance executives. The result was that little feminine thinking was applied to the problems of insurance.

Today, it is still predominantly a masculine business, but much attention is focused on women's needs—and this generation is finally discovering that a woman can be every bit as valuable as a man.

Big Al Hirt's Big Family

On Father's Day, no show-business papa is prouder of his brood than the big daddy of Dixieland trumpet players

By GEORGE S. O'NEAL

Al's wife holds Jeff Davis, 3, youngest of their eight children. Others are Rebecca, 12, and Gretchen, 17, at left; Mary Lee, 19, standing; Brigid, 11, with dog; and on the floor, Rachel, 9, Jennifer, 5, and Stephen, 7.

SECRET SERVICE men at President Kennedy's inaugural ball closed in on a stranger who was squirming through the crowd.

The massive, black-bearded man was carrying a musical-instrument case that was just the right size to hold a Tommy gun. When he told them his name and said he had been invited to play his trumpet at the ball, they were unimpressed. They had never heard of Al Hirt, and before they let him go, he had to show them his trumpet and prove his identity.

That could hardly happen today; in a little more than two years, Al Hirt has become a celebrity. Millions of tv viewers have seen the Dixieland trumpeter on the Ed Sullivan, Dinah Shore, and Andy Williams shows. He also has made two movies, "World by Night" and "Lovers Must Learn"; he packs them in with his night-club act, and his record albums have triggered a big popular response. On his upcoming LP, "Beauty and the Beast," Al not only plays his horn but shares the vocals with singer-dancer Ann-Margret.

What's Al Hirt like? I spent a good deal of time with him and his wife Mary during a visit they made to New York—and I can assure you that Al is a big man in more ways than one.

Six-feet, two-inches tall and weighing 300 pounds, Al has an appetite to match his size. He can stash away a dozen eggs for breakfast, a peck of shrimp and a brace of lobsters for lunch, and a rack of lamb for dinner.

But above all else, the keystone of Al's engaging personality is his bighearted love for his children and the enormous enjoyment he gets out of raising a large family.

He and Mary already have eight youngsters, and they are determined to have four more. Their oldest, Mary Lee, is 19. Then comes Gretchen, 17; Rebecca, 12; Brigid, 11; Rachel, 9; Stephen, 7; Jennifer, 5; and Jefferson Davis, going on 4.

The Hirts live in a large seven-room house in New Orleans. But with a brood the size of theirs, complete privacy is still hard to come by. Mary recalls one Sunday morning when she awoke with the feeling that someone was looking at her. When she got her eyes wide open, she discovered she was right. The door to her room was ajar, and there was Steve taking a pal on a tour of the premises. Pointing to Mary, Steve said, "And that over there, she's my mother."

OF NECESSITY, the Hirt household is well organized—but not with cold, impersonal precision. For instance, each of the children looks forward to the day when he will be promoted from the small-fry nook to the grownups' table in the dining room. There is no set time for promotion; it comes when Al and Mary feel the child has earned the advancement.

Now that Al is on the road a great deal, the big moment of each day for the Hirt family is 6:30 p.m. That's when he calls long-distance for a family confab. The children and Mary are there, waiting for the phone to ring. One by one, they take their turns talking with Daddy. Precedence is determined not by age but by who is the most eager to talk next.

"Those long-distance calls take around 45 minutes, and they run into plenty of money," Al says. "But they make my life worth living."

We Escaped from a "White Dungeon"

As waves splashed over our sides, we tied onto a buoy—but rescue was still no closer.

A carefree boat trip turned into terror for the author and his wife as banks of impenetrable fog imprisoned them for 24 hours far out on wind-churned Lake Michigan

By RICHARD HOFFMAN as told to Hal Higdon

I HAVEN'T LOST my love of the water as a result of being nearly killed last summer; I've just learned to respect it.

For 24 hours my wife and I were adrift on Lake Michigan in fog as thick as milk. Waves splashed over the sides of our 16-foot inboard, threatening to swamp or, almost worse, push us far from shore and rescue. I swore that, if we got out alive, I'd never try to cross the lake in an open boat again.

It all began one sunny Tuesday in June when we impulsively decided to visit friends on the other side of the lake. I had made the trip from Wilmette, Ill., to Michigan City, Ind., many times. On a clear day it is an easy, unexciting cruise of 38 miles; you lose sight of shore only half the distance. But to be safe, I radioed the Coast Guard: "Any small-craft warnings?"

"Fair weather predicted all day," crackled back the voice.

"I'm leaving Wilmette bound for Michigan City. I should get there around noon."

I had allowed myself considerable leeway. It was then 10 o'clock, and the trip ordinarily takes only an hour and a half. But by 11:15, we still had not sighted the Michigan City shore. Visibility had worsened.

Then, almost like stepping through a door, we found ourselves immersed in fog so thick we could see nothing but the bow of the boat! "I've never seen fog like this," said Mickey, my wife. I hated to admit it, but neither had I.

I was afraid of going aground, so I cut speed and steered by compass. Later, I would have happily ripped the bottom of my boat out on some beach for the privilege of touching land. After 10 minutes I radioed the Coast Guard and told them our predicament. Yes, they had fog, but visibility was still almost a mile.

We must have stumbled across an isolated bank. "Well, if we can't get through the fog," I said to my wife, "maybe we can go around." With the Coast Guard's permission, I made a 180-degree turn and tried to go out the way we came in. But after 15 minutes, I had to give up; the fog had completely swallowed our boat.

"We failed to penetrate the fog," I radioed the Coast Guard. "Assistance requested."

"Stand by and drop anchor," came their reply.

We dropped 100 feet of line overboard—but failed to touch bottom. Waves, building from the northeast, began to splash over our sides. Then a lucky thing happened. I heard a thump; looking overboard I saw we had drifted against a fisherman's buoy. It must have been a million-to-one shot. After tying onto it, I relayed the news to shore.

"We'll find you in a minute," they replied confidently. But five hours later they were still looking. Unfortunately we were too small to appear on the radarscope, and our radio signal had grown too weak for the directional finder.

As we listened to the Coast Guard boats conversing back and forth by radio, we heard them reporting visibility of half a mile. Yet our visibility was only 50 feet. "Why, they're nowhere near us," said my wife—and I had to admit she was right.

It was like being adrift in outer space. With the fog completely surrounding us, we were separated from the world. We felt we had to do something, so I got permission to make another compass run toward shore. But 20 minutes later, with fuel dangerously low, I finally gave up and cut engine. I had to hold some gas in reserve to avoid being washed against a breakwater.

NOW OUR PROBLEMS multiplied: we were adrift, our radio batteries were shot, we had no warm clothing, the waves roared at us broadside, and there were eight inches of water at our feet.

I dug out a canvas bag to use as a sea anchor, but it pulled us only part way out of the trough. Then I remembered the picnic basket that had contained our lunch. Filling it with tools, a fire extinguisher, and every other heavy object I could find, I tied it to a nylon line and dumped it overboard. It yanked the boat's head into the waves; in this position, we at least could ride out the night without having to bail constantly.

The night was cold. We huddled beneath a terry-cloth beach towel and cushions we had pulled off the seats. The canvas boat cover would have helped, but it had been stolen only a few days before. We did not sleep.

"Do you think they'll ever find us?" Mickey asked with great concern.

"The fog will lift by morning," I said. But by morning it had not lifted; we still were imprisoned in a white dungeon.

During the night, however, we had received a clue to our whereabouts. It was the sound of a foghorn, and it seemed to come from all directions at once. Its mournful cry grew and grew until about two in the morning—then it faded slowly in the night.

"THAT'S THE Michigan City foghorn," I told my wife. "We must be drifting by offshore."

By seven o'clock my radio battery had recharged enough to report this to the Coast Guard. An hour later we heard a boat's engine upwind. I whistled as loudly as I could, but they must not have heard us. Soon the noise of their engine faded away.

Then we heard another boat downwind, tooting its horn three blasts at a time. They had heard us trying to attract the first boat. We had finally been found!

Forty-five minutes later the radar boat Arundel loomed up like a giant whale feeling its way through the mists, and we were taken aboard. As we sipped hot coffee with the Arundel's captain, he told us: "If you had one 35-cent grocery item on board, we would have found you at once."

"What's that?" I asked.

"A roll of aluminum foil. Spread out on your deck it would have served as a reflector for our radar signal."

I won't make the same mistake twice. The next time I cross a large lake in a small boat I'll be hugging the shore line. And in addition to carrying the extra clothing and provisions we forgot, I'll have a roll of aluminum foil along!

Hope Springs Paternal

As Dad opens the Father's Day socks and ties,
A faraway look appears in his eyes;
He harbors a hope both wistful and rash:
Maybe this year they all paid cash.

The six-year-old boy had a habit that caused his mother considerable embarrassment. During every tour of the supermarket, he would sneak surprise items into the cart, and at the check-out counter the mother would have to return everything from a box of chocolate bars to a bag of fertilizer.

One day the store manager noticed the youngster struggling along beside his mother and obviously in trouble. "Say, sonny," he said, "you've lost your belt."

"No, he hasn't," the mother replied firmly. "I took it off when we came in here—now he has to keep his hands busy holding up his pants." —James Shotwell

Two druggists were in fierce competition on opposite corners. One day one of them put up a sign:

The next day the other countered with a sign that read:

"If we haven't got it, you don't need it."

The home demonstration of remote-control television had been so successful that the local appliance dealer was No. 1 salesman in his area. The manufacturer sent a sales expert to learn his secret.

"Demonstration," said the dealer. "I change channels with the remote control while standing outside, while in my private office—even from the storeroom downstairs. It never fails to impress them."

Just then a customer came in pushing along his new tv set and demanding a refund. "You're dissatisfied with the remote-control feature?" asked the appliance dealer incredulously.

"It's more than that," the customer replied. "I'm getting too darn tired running to all those different places every time I want to change channels!"

"I want to talk."

Real ham in theatrical family, says James MacArthur, is his son Charley.

JAMES MacARTHUR: He Couldn't Help Being a Star

By JACK RYAN

He had promised his mother, Helen Hayes, that he'd get an education before deciding on a career; but the best plans often go awry—to everyone's benefit

THE YOUNG COUPLE that moved into a New England-style home in Tarzana, Calif., earlier this year posted a simple sign outside: "MacArthur."

The stocky, square-jawed husband spent days pushing a heavy polisher over the hardwood floors while his three-year-old son, Charley, tried to ride atop it. The wife of the household abandoned improvising comedy routines, a talent her husband deeply envies, to shove around the few pieces of antique furniture they had managed to accumulate up to then.

The young MacArthurs had put down their roots. Any doubts about themselves or about what they were doing seemed to have been outgrown.

Head of the house is James MacArthur, starring now in Warner Bros.' "Spencer's Mountain." He is one of those "children of famous people," a rather shy, easygoing 25-year-old who tried to be a dutiful son, didn't succeed entirely, but ended up making everyone happy.

Mrs. MacArthur—Joyce Collins Bulifant—comes from a wealthy Philadelphia society family. Her comedienne's talents might have been submerged in postdebutante life if she hadn't met Jaimie at an ultraexclusive school at 14, started "going steady" at 15, and married at 20.

MacArthur is the son of the First Lady of the Theater, Helen Hayes. His father was the late newspaperman-playwright, Charles MacArthur. They strongly desired that he would have a "normal childhood." Jaimie would not be a "professional child," would finish college (Harvard), then decide on a career, and next marry.

"MY FATHER used to say, 'Never be an actor.' He was a great kidder, of course, but I didn't realize it when I was young. My mother didn't try to influence me. She wanted me to make up my own mind after college. At home it was almost all theater, and she felt I could evaluate things better after an education."

A friend of the MacArthur family recalls young Jaimie as a "good boy, obedient, and very anxious to please." Jaimie entered Solesbury School in New Hope, Pa., where he played football, basketball, and baseball. "The school was so small," he says, grinning, "that if you could get out on the field, you were on the team."

But acting? Very little. "My mother let me appear with her in 'The Corn Is Green' when I was only eight, then she retired me for about seven years," he says. "Friends would offer her roles for me, but she'd say: 'What? Have him up until midnight and going to professional children's schools? Oh, no!' Later on, I was a messenger that nobody could hear in 'Macbeth,' and another time I was the page nobody could see who wheeled my mother on stage as Queen Victoria, but that was about it."

MacArthur says he didn't have any great urge to counter his parents' wishes, but their theatrical fame was overwhelming, and his older sister, Mary, had made an outstanding stage debut, only to die of polio at the age of 19. As a timid youngster, Jaimie appeared to lack the driving self-confidence to challenge this awesome family tradition. "He looked everywhere for a career but the stage," a friend says. "Business particularly fascinated him, and I think he would have had a good head for it."

When producer Martin Manulis asked Jaimie to star in a television drama in 1955, he got his mother's permission to accept, pointing out he was on summer vacation anyway. His first rehearsal was so bad that he went home almost in tears. His unsteady confidence was shaken further by reports that an official of the network had hired a stand-by actor in case MacArthur failed. "The kid must have got the job through connections," the official was quoted as saying.

But the critics praised his acting, and Jaimie simply packed fame with his books and finished high school. When next summer came, Hollywood was ready to do a film version of "The Young Strangers"—if MacArthur would star. Acclaim for his role topped even the tv reviews. But Jaimie entered Harvard, as had long been planned, and considered a career in the publishing business.

BY NOW, despite timidity, MacArthur had made his acting debut and brought it off in the best theater tradition. There were no self-doubts now: he wanted to be an actor. But what about his promise to finish school? He thought up all sorts of arguments—"Mother, you never went beyond high school, and you've got 11 honorary degrees."

But when the showdown came, all he could say was: "I'm not getting much out of school."

And Miss Hayes replied: "Then there's not much point being there."

Jaimie promised that he would take only a "leave of absence" from Harvard. A wise mother, Miss Hayes ignored the promise. Jaimie was an actor now. He went on to six movies and several tv shows, mostly boyish adventure roles. But in "Spencer's Mountain," he plays man-sized love scenes with Mimsey Farmer.

Plans for Jaimie may not have worked out according to parental expectations; they rarely do. But when Grandmother Hayes visits that stone house in Tarzana, she happily visits a very normal couple who have found what they've always wanted.
